Take Time . . .

From the moment we were born, time played an important part in our lives. When we were small we couldn't yet tell time, but we learned when it was time to work, play, sleep, and eat.

Take time to look around—
It is too short a day to be selfish

As we grew older, time played an ever-increasing role. We had to be at school on time, hand in our assignments on time, and later, be to work on time.

Take time to work—
It is the price of success

In high school, managing time determined the difference between passing and not passing a class. With involvement in more social activities, as well as more school work, we learned to divide our time in order to accomplish set tasks.

As we advanced we saw people who spent all their time working, while others spent their time playing. In order to be happy we had to strike a suitable compromise.

Take time to play—
It is the secret of perpetual youth

We work to survive, yet to achieve fulfillment we learned we must also do other things.

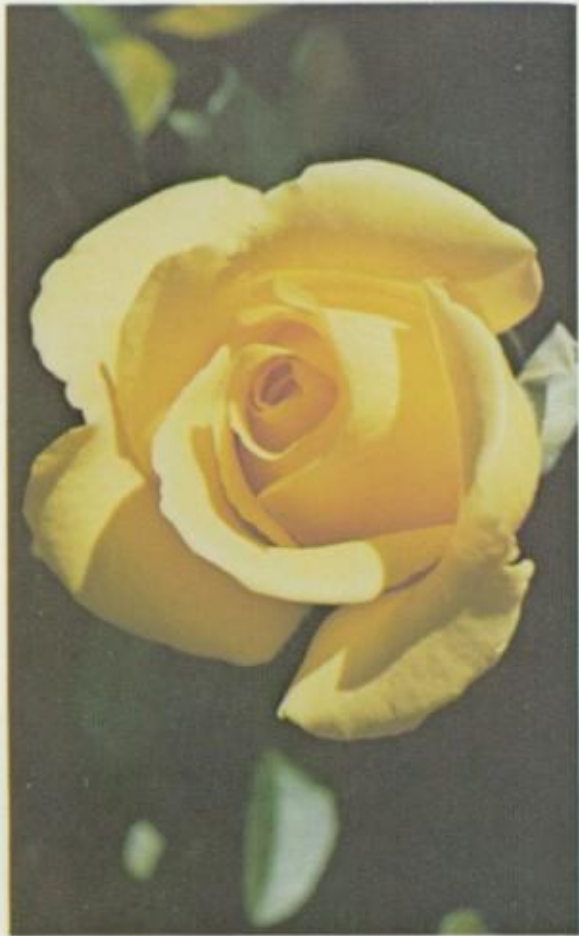

Our theme, 'Take Time' conveys this idea.

Take time to think, read, dream, laugh, and to be friendly, but most of all—

Take time to love and be loved—
It is the privilege of the gods.

As the first students arrived, the empty halls conveyed a sense of excitement which welcomed the new arrivals in the way an autumn morning greets the sun. The sophomores interpreted this feeling as a darkness, while the juniors and seniors again felt the warmth and light to which they had grown accustomed in previous years.

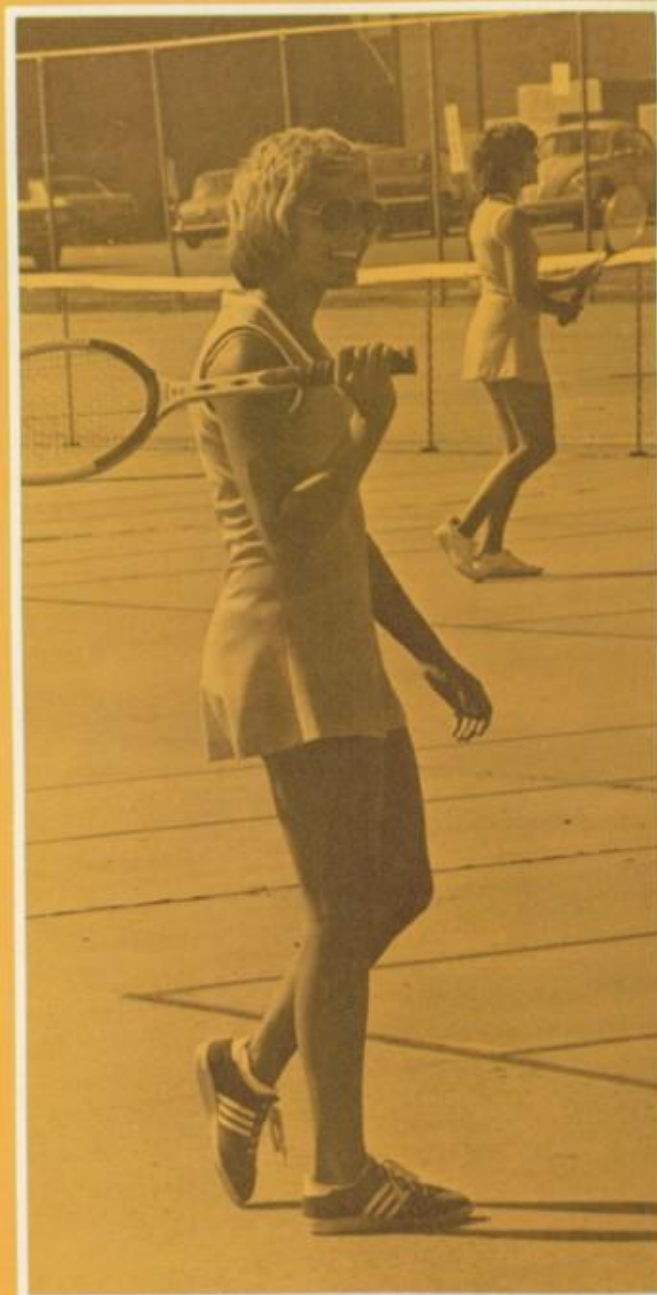

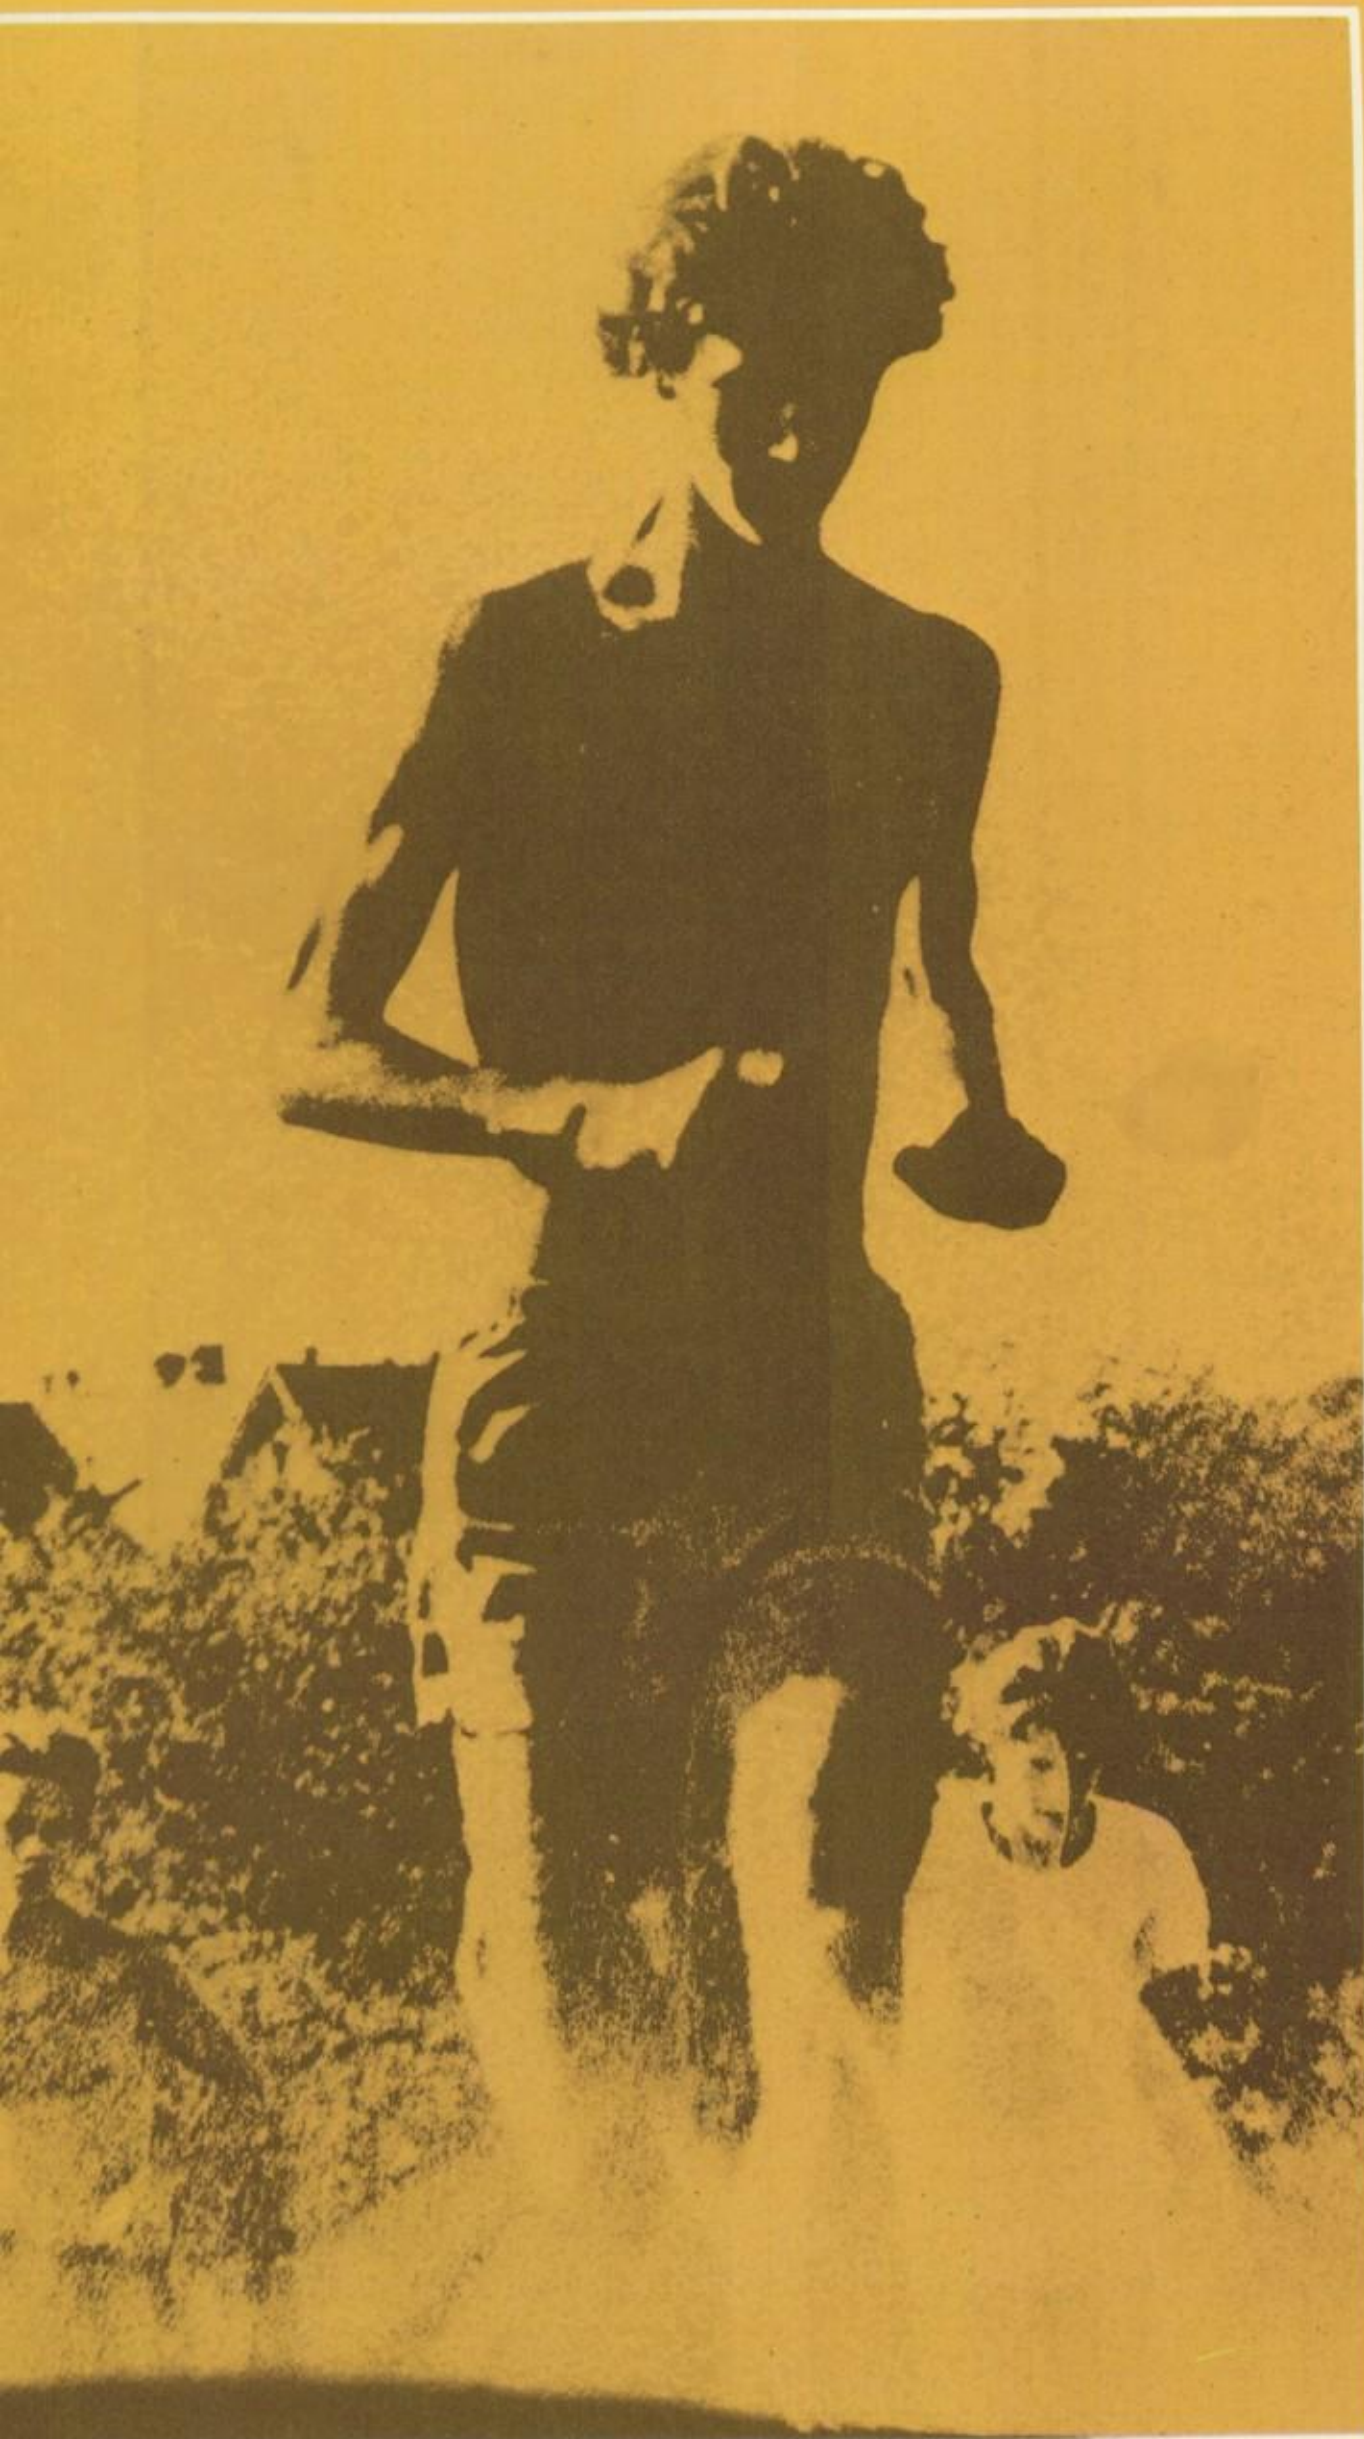

Autumn soon darkened into a dormant winter, but unlike nature, the passing time brought unity and friendship to Southeast, and while winter bloomed to spring, so did each student bloom into a fuller life. However, through organizations such as the new Spirit Unlimited, each blossom was united to benefit the entire student body.

Finally summer. The cycle repeated itself, as do the seasons, indefinitely.

Seasons come gracefully;
soon wither;
all things pass

activities

School unity builds spirit, enthusiasm at events

Take time to laugh. . .

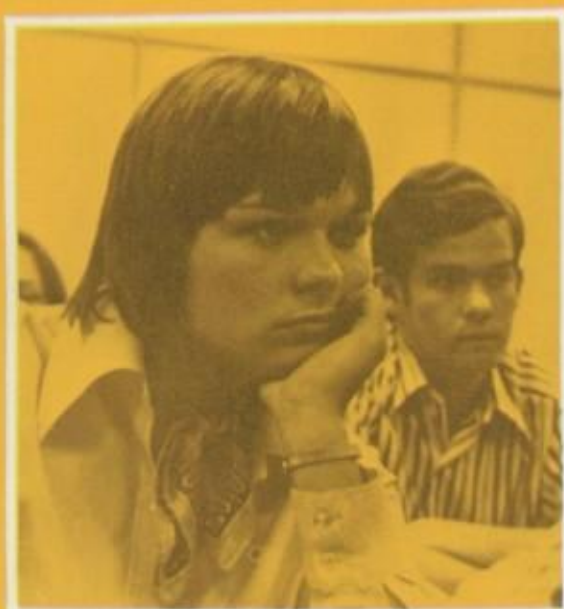

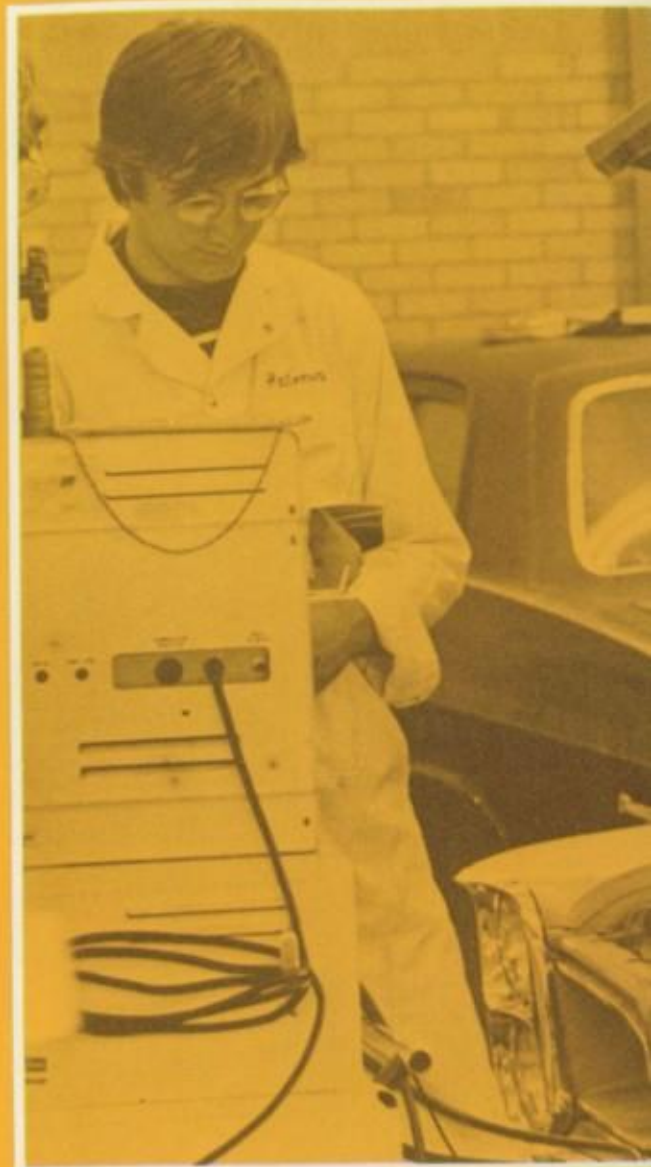

Organized events taught us to laugh, to become involved, to care about others. We learned to unite toward a common goal, and by uniting, we achieved.

Sports and pep boosters both taught the value of activity. Each, in its own way, built character. And without this, we could not have laid a foundation to cope with the happiness and tensions in life.

Students' life encompasses classroom procedures

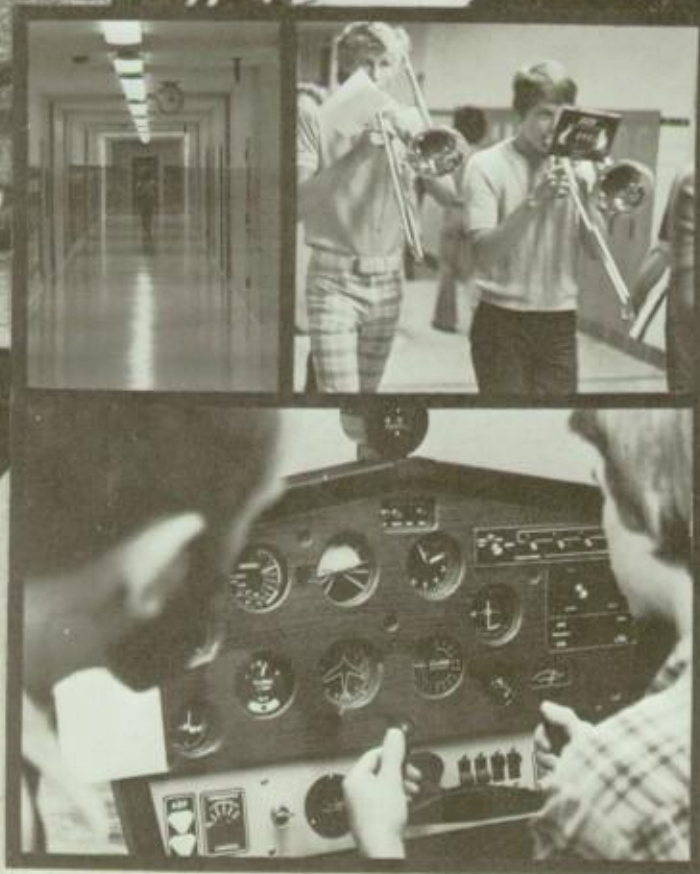

Take time to work. . .

Classes were where we learned. But learning was more than just math or English. Learning was also painting, singing, and working in the chemistry lab.

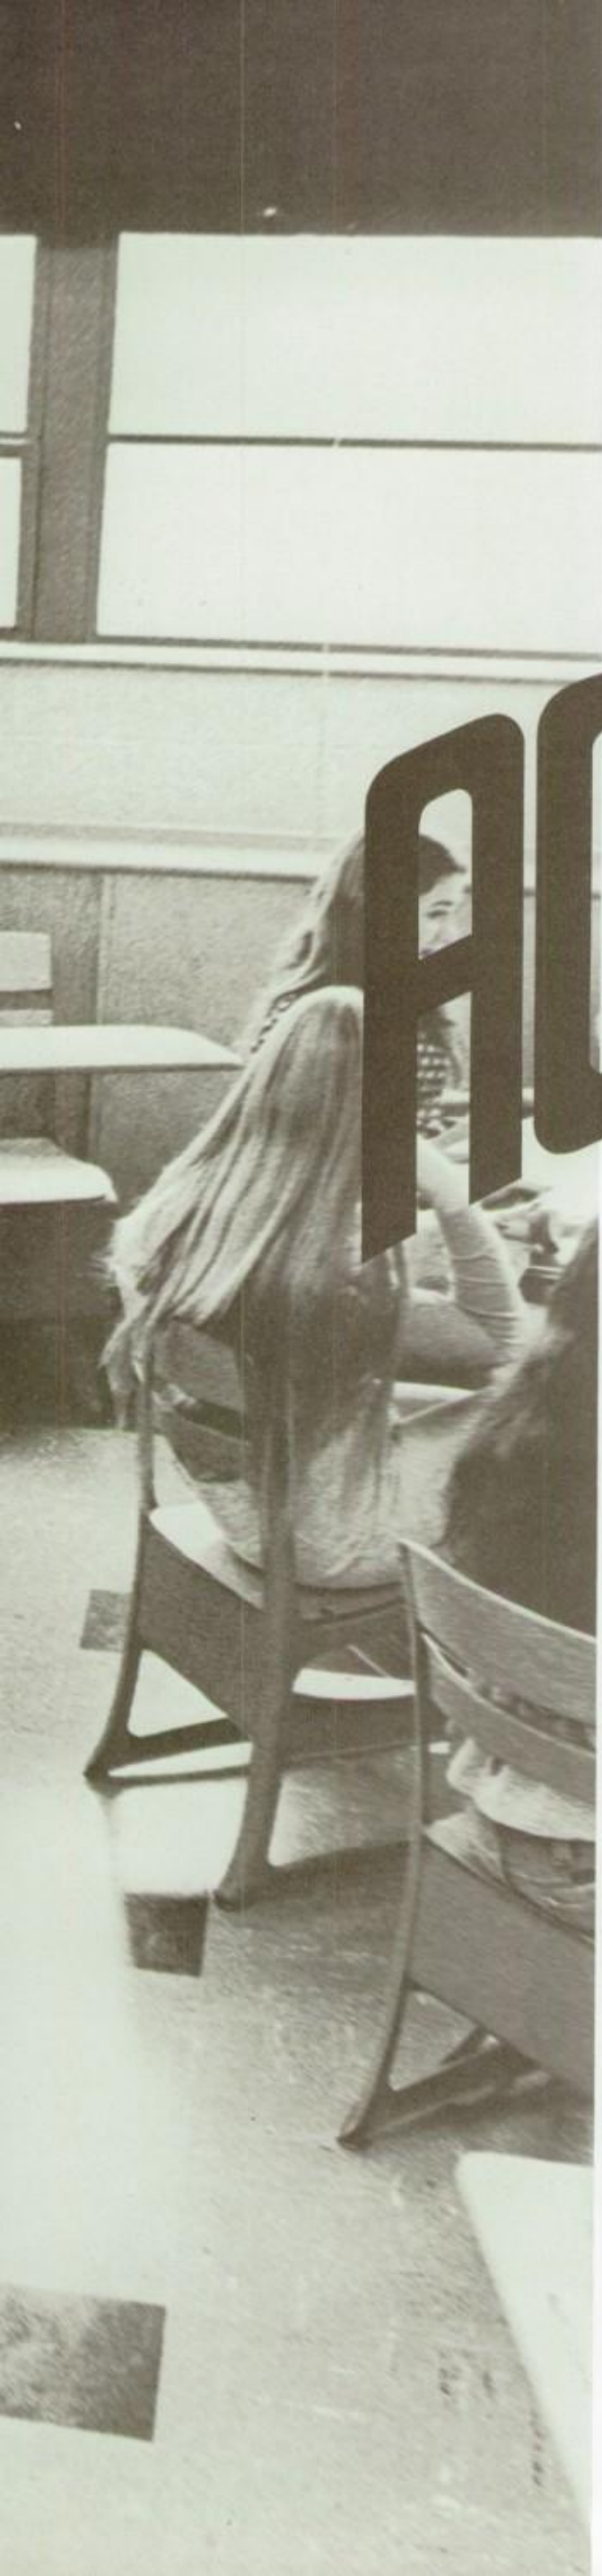

Through this, we incorporated working with other people. This taught us the most valuable lesson. It taught us to get along with people and the world -- the quality which is most important to success.

ACADEMICS

Take time to work —

It is the price of success.

New principal assistants,

student body
in activities

"I feel that Southeast, in terms of many things, is a very fine school—certainly in terms of the physical plant, for the equipment that we have is unusually fine. We have a great faculty. It is a good, well-balanced one, and the student body is a good student body. I don't think we have to take a back seat to anybody in the country in terms of the opportunity for learning that is offered here."

DR. VERNON O. KIRBY

Utilizing his 16 years of experience in the school system, Dr. Vernon Kirby took his position as principal, the school's second head administrator in its 17 years of existence.

Formerly the head of Wichita High School East, Dr. Kirby entered Southeast with the hope of unifying his administration as well as the student body. He began by moving his entire administrative staff into the main office area rather than having divided offices.

"We, as a staff of four people, came up with the idea that we thought it would work better to have the administrative functions centered in one location." (Dr. Kirby)

With his major aim being an "inclusive" student body, the towering 6'4" man felt that individual contact with students was important, although many other duties took his time away from school.

Ready to officiate in his absence at any given moment was Mr. Merlin Keely, associate principal. Having served as assistant principal for two years, Mr. Keely became responsible for the school's operation when Dr. Kirby was away. In addition to this position, he acted as chairman of the Assembly Committee and was in charge of student enrollment.

Serving his second year as the head of general school operations was Assistant Principal Willie Johnson. Mr. Johnson's post encompassed a variety of administrative duties, including the reading of the bulletin, collection of fees, hall supervision, and pupil control. He also was in charge of a blood program, which enabled volunteering seniors to give blood for the Red Cross.

In close contact with students was Mr. Mel Johnson, Southeast's new assistant

"In the past four years, I have seen students become more aware of their rights as citizens. I think that this is right and proper that they should, because it would indicate to me that the school is doing a better job because the school is an educational instrument." (Mr. (Mel) Johnson) principal, who was administrative assistant for four years at Wichita South High.

Top, center—Enjoying involvement with the students, Dr. Kirby is a familiar figure in the halls as kids stop to rap with the administrator. Bottom right, page 14—"I've always operated on the theory that the school I work in is the best, and if it isn't, then I should be working to make it the best," said Mr. Merlin Keely, associate principal. Bottom left, page 15—"I am still amazed by the amount and intensity of student spirit at Southeast. Your involvement in school activities is fantastic. I only hope that your lives are filled with the same degree of fervor once you leave Southeast," said Mr. Willie Johnson, Jr., vice principal. Bottom right, page 15—"I feel that the students are aware and do know what their rights are because, if nothing else, the students' rights are those guaranteed by the Constitution," said Mr. Mel Johnson, vice principal.

After school work inspires trade training

With more students enrolled than ever before, the Home Economics Department offered courses which interested both sexes. For the first time, every area, except Home Furnishings, previously dominated by girls included boys. Home Economics Related Occupations (HERO) featured on-the-job training to help a person help himself.

Learning to help oneself was also a big part of the curriculum in the Industrial

Innovations promote individual aims

Initiating the use of a computer last year, the Math Department doubled its enrollment in a computer course by using a new card-reader. The Department added a new course, Introduction to Algebra I to the curriculum.

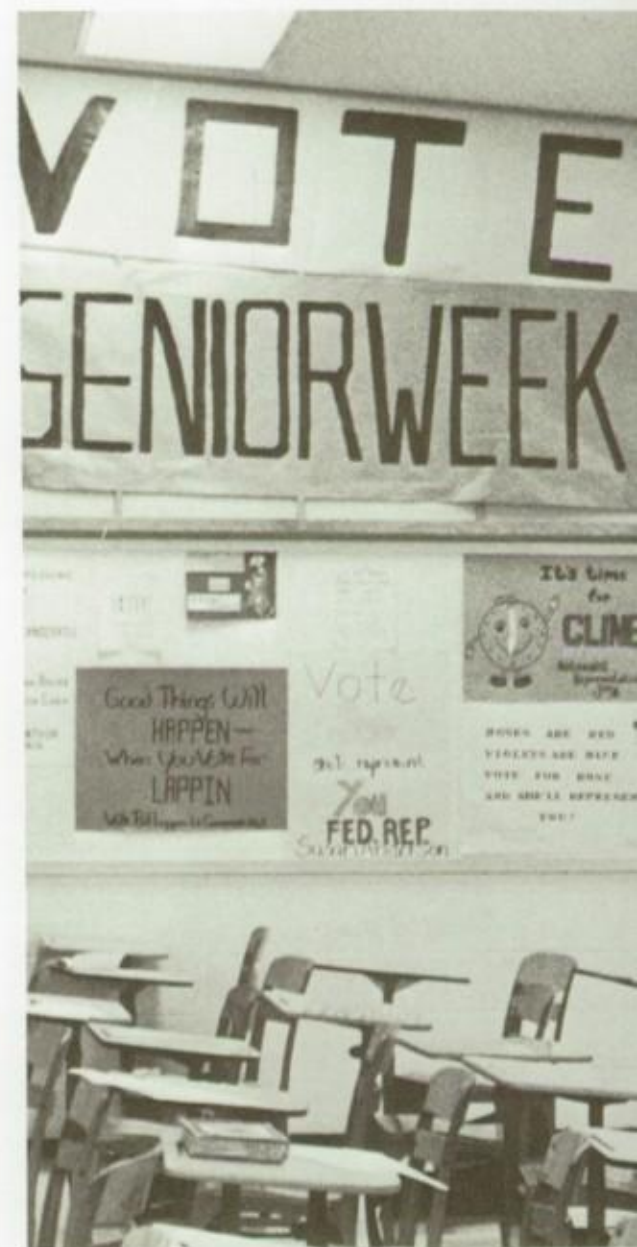

Innovation was also present in the Science Department as an experiment was conducted in one class concerning individual study. The new project entitled

"Even though I don't plan on a career in science, I think that it's important to know a little about it because we live in such a scientific world." (Mary Estes, senior)

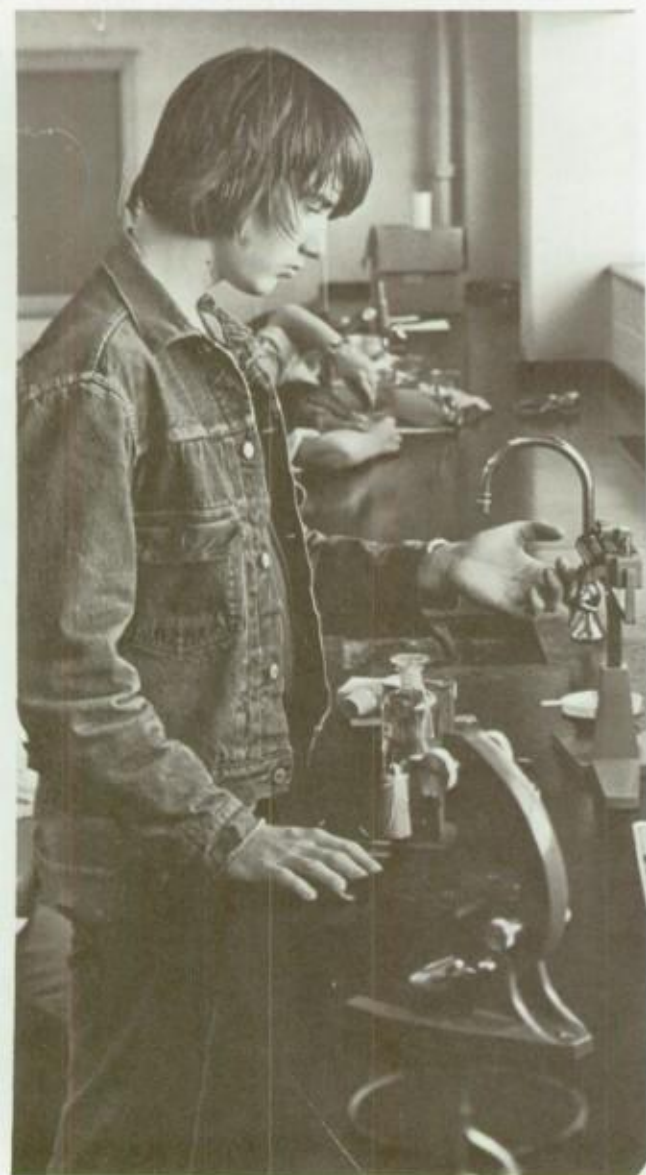

"Individualized Science Instructional System" provided separate student work in the laboratory as well as in the classroom. The system offered the students choices in three-week mini-courses concerning various aspects of the science field.

Government classes, team-taught by Mr. Terry Gire and Mr. Louis Boulard received first-hand knowledge in the ways of politics. Mr. Gire, who ran in the primaries for state representative of the 87th District, was aided in his door-to-door campaign by Southeast students.

Venturing to western Kansas and Colorado, students from Mr. Richard Young's A.P. History class learned to put their knowledge to practical use. On several occasions the seniors searched for historical artifacts.

Experience increases jobs; strong ideas go places

Helping students find jobs was the basis for Office Education (O.E.) and Distributive Education (D.E.).

Distributive Education taught students salesmanship and distribution techniques. By operating the bookstore, D.E. had easy access to a business which can offer training to students, and they did, for the first time, turn a profit.

Also for the first time, a state officer of the Distributive Education Clubs of

"When I get out of high school, I will already have had the work experience that I'll need to get the kind of job I want, which is a legal secretary. When you go to apply for a job, and you tell them that you were in O.E., the first thing they say is, 'Great. We'd love to have ya!'" (Peggy Gillenwater, senior)

America (DECA) came from Southeast. Senior Nancy Rodick was elected as state president of the organization.

D.E. also raised $1,500 through the bookstore and other fund-raising activities in order to send the members to a national convention, held in the eastern U.S.

Office Education (O.E.) helped students get jobs to utilize skills such as typing or secretarial work. O.E. also had a student elected to state office. Peggy Gillenwater, senior, was elected as president to the Kansas division of Office

"It's an experience I wouldn't have received unless I was in O.E." (Senior Tina Westhues)

Education Clubs of America. Members of O.E. performed duties for the school such as acting as guides for open house early in the year.

With classes ranging from Business Law to shorthand, the Business Department offered students instruction in skills beneficial in many fields. Although most of the classes offered by these three departments are geared for students not planning to attend college, many skills are helpful in a variety of fields.

The present drill and grind of learning new shorthand skills and symbols may eventually pay off for the near graduate. ►

Actual tests, loyal pursuit lead to safe, healthy life

Experimenting with co-educational ideas, students found that having the other sex in gym classes could be "fun."

In compliance with the state's new anti-sex-discrimination laws, one school from each educational system was chosen as a "pilot" school to test various approaches in altered classes. As numerous gym students discovered, Southeast was chosen as the "pilot" from the Wichita area.

Meeting the law meant changing the names from "Girls' P.E." and "Boys' P.E." to just Physical Education, and also changing the names of the gyms from the "boys' gym" and the "girls' gym" to just the north and south gym.

Students in Driver's Education also complied with state laws. In order to get a driver's-ed. certificate, which sometimes gets a young driver an insurance

The yearbook was funded through $6 from the price of each activity ticket, and Jill Mills, senior, Advertising Manager of the Stampede was left with keeping the newspaper 'in the black.'

In Language Arts, a new Mass Media course was instigated where students learned the techniques of communication. Project DEEP continued and the filming of "Spoon River Anthology" also promoted learning.

Choralesque highlights year for vocalists

Involvement was also promoted through the Oct. 2-4 talent day, an old-fashioned picnic in the fall, and the annual spring trip.

Also participating in various musical activities were the Girls' Ensemble, directed by Mrs. Sandra Miller. Using choreography to illustrate many of their songs, the group performed for school and civic groups throughout the year. Their presentation at the fall Junior Miss Invitational opened their musical performance.

Sophomore choir members rehearse songs to be presented during Christmas Vespers.

In their performances throughout the year, the Junior Misses used song as a means of communication. Directed by Mr. Vernon Nicholson, the 24-member group participated at all school concerts, as well as outside functions.

Opening the musical performances for the Junior Misses was the annual Southeast Junior Miss Invitational in October.

"I have enjoyed having the experience of singing in front of people. And just getting to know everyone in the group has been great." (Senior Dana Decker, Junior Misses vice-president and social chairman)

With all female ensembles in the city attending, the evening included a potluck dinner and a musical sampling from each group.

While this united the upperclassmen, the Sophomore Choir learned to work as one unit in practice and performances. Also led by Mr. Nicholson, the group performed in annual programs and at contest, where they received ratings in rehearsed and sight-read material.

Also highly involved in rehearsals were the Girls' Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Sandra Miller. This group presented classical and contemporary pieces at various school programs, including the Oct. 24 concert, "Ode to Music."

Ensembles receive unity by concerts, class work

Combining pleasure with frequent performances, the Madrigals became a closely knit group. Three programs a day were not uncommon, but with the assistance of their director, Mr. Vernon Nicholson, Madrigals also took time out for fun.

Activities included a treasure hunt, a cookout and hayrack ride, and the annual Madrigal Invitational. This provided Wich-

"The performances, especially around Christmas time, became very demanding, and required the group to exert their best as many as ten performances a week. its mixed ensembles the chance to get to know each other, and to exchange ideas about music.

Another special program was the Madrigal-Junior Miss formal, held Dec. 19 at the Campus Activity Center Theatre.

In spite of the current trend to combine male and female classes, an all male group still functioned. Enthusiastic was the word which described the Boys' Ensemble, also directed by Mr. Nicholson. Presenting numbers of harmony and humor, the group exuded a more relaxed and informal air at their programs, and became audience favorites wherever they performed.

Uniforms accent band's appearance on field

With the long awaited and badly needed new uniforms a reality, the 110-member marching band filed on field last fall to perform for football crowds at halftime shows. Directed by Mr. Steve Luttrell, the group also marched through main hall, promoting various games.

Pacing the marching band through their intricate steps, senior Mike Graddy had the distinction of being drum major. Combining two years of experience in band and stage band with his leadership, Graddy performed throughout the winning football season.

When the football season ended, the marching band became the concert band, a group which played at instrumental concerts during the year.

Drum Major Mike Graddy, senior, prepares to sound signals to begin his direction of the marching band.

A big applause brings smiles to Pompon Girls Pam Olander, Susan Boettger, Stacy Crawford, Julie Ferguson, Charene Charles and Cindy Cushing after one of their half-time performances.

Aiding the drum major in generating spirit were twirlers Sally Hobbie and Joyce Steinberg, juniors. Utilizing hours of practice, the twirlers made appearances at the home football games.

Another group that performed for football as well as basketball were the Pompon Girls, sponsored by Mrs. Wanda McCaskey. Consisting of 40 junior and senior girls, the group was guided through

"Even though Pompon Girls requires going to class every day and practicing after school, it is still a lot of fun." (Junior Stacy Crawford, Pompon Girl) various routines by leader Sharon Maurer, senior. They were also active in spirit and fund-raising projects, such as decorating lockers, making box lunches for the players, and having their fall car wash.

Twirlers Joyce Steinberg and Sally Hobbie, juniors, complete their routine while marching band members play on.

FACULTY

Take time to think —

It is the source of power.

"One of the rewards of counseling is to see students bloom and start doing well in school. When successful students come back after high school to visit us, it makes the counselors feel good."

Clark Beck, Head Counselor.

"Speaking to senior English classes is a very good opportunity for me because I am not the counselor for the entire senior class. I now have an opportunity to meet other seniors whom I do not counsel."

Maxine Johnson, Senior Counselor

Librarians, counselors help solve pupils' needs

"The facilities in our library are tremendous. We have plenty of room, a lot of audio-visual equipment and an excellent book collection."

Glenda McNew, Head Librarian

"We just don't have a major discipline problem with students this year. Everything runs so much more smoothly now."

Vera Berry, Assistant Librarian

"Being a librarian gives me a chance to work with students and with the faculty. I like it very much but the biggest problem is taking care of the enormous amount of materials that we have."

Patricia Browne, Assistant Librarian

"My primary function as a school nurse is to teach health. If a student has a cut or abrasion, I will show them how to clean and bandage the injury. But I never diagnose or actually treat a student."

Alberta Hutchinson, nurse; scholarship committee

"There has been an increase in minimum wage to $2. I remember when I had a job for 18 cents an hour and quit to get a job for 60 cents an hour. That was my summer out of high school. Right now I try to see all the seniors and see whatever they have in mind. In today's world, they need preparation."

Richard Elving, Guidance Center

"I try to aim toward a development of trust, offering a variety of services, and a helping hand when needed."

Ken Clark, sophomore counselor;

"Teaching is basically subject-oriented, whereas counseling is basically people-oriented. We're striving to work with students concerning problems and development from the student's frame of reference in how he or she relates to self and others."

Caren Beckloff, Junior Counselor

"There are presently many very able students here at Southeast; however, I do not feel as many are using their talents or taking advantage of the opportunities available for improving themselves as was formerly the case."

James Mader, social studies; social committee

"High school is a time of being exposed to different things. Students should learn to adjust themselves to different people."

Richard King, Psychology, U.S. History

"I would like to see a change in the school's daily routine. For instance, having some classes meet two or three times a week."

John Burkholder, Government, U.S. History

"Ideally, it would be nice to have optional attendance, where students have a greater choice in classroom activities."

Terry Gire, Government, Sociology

"Nowadays, school plays more of a role in the student's life, both academically and socially, mostly socially. Students are more open to meet new people than let's say, five years ago."

Louis Boulard, Government, World Geography; All School Prom, senior class sponsor

"I have really been surprised at the school spirit here in Southeast. I was always told the larger the school the less the spirit."

Bruce DeHaven, U.S. History; sophomore football coach

"I want to turn kids to people. Students should learn to become responsible for their actions and teachers should treat them as adults."

James Powell, Economics, Government, Comparative Religions; Student Council

"Students' attitudes today seem to be a change for the better. They have to get along better now days and they do. They're concerned."

Arlen Roberson, Government, U.S. History; Spirit Unlimited, Radio Club

Social studies relates past, present, future
time spans

"We are going through a period where we aren't sure about what we want to teach. We are falling away from the old system of teaching, reading, writing and arithmetic. Going to open classes, labs, and other classes of these standards are becoming prevalent in school today."

Richard Young, U.S. History, A.P. History; faculty lounge

"The most important thing is to teach the students to think clearly and have sufficient data from which to draw valid conclusions."

Lee Streiff, Humanities, Psychology, Sociology; Social Studies Coordinator

"I don't feel any subject is taboo. Any subject matter is relevant to any course, if it is kept in respectable form."

Melvin McClellan, U.S. History, World Geography

"Student involvement is increasing, and this is because student leaders are working more. The students are also responding much better and are putting forth much more effort."

Jane Nyquist, English 2, English 3; social committee

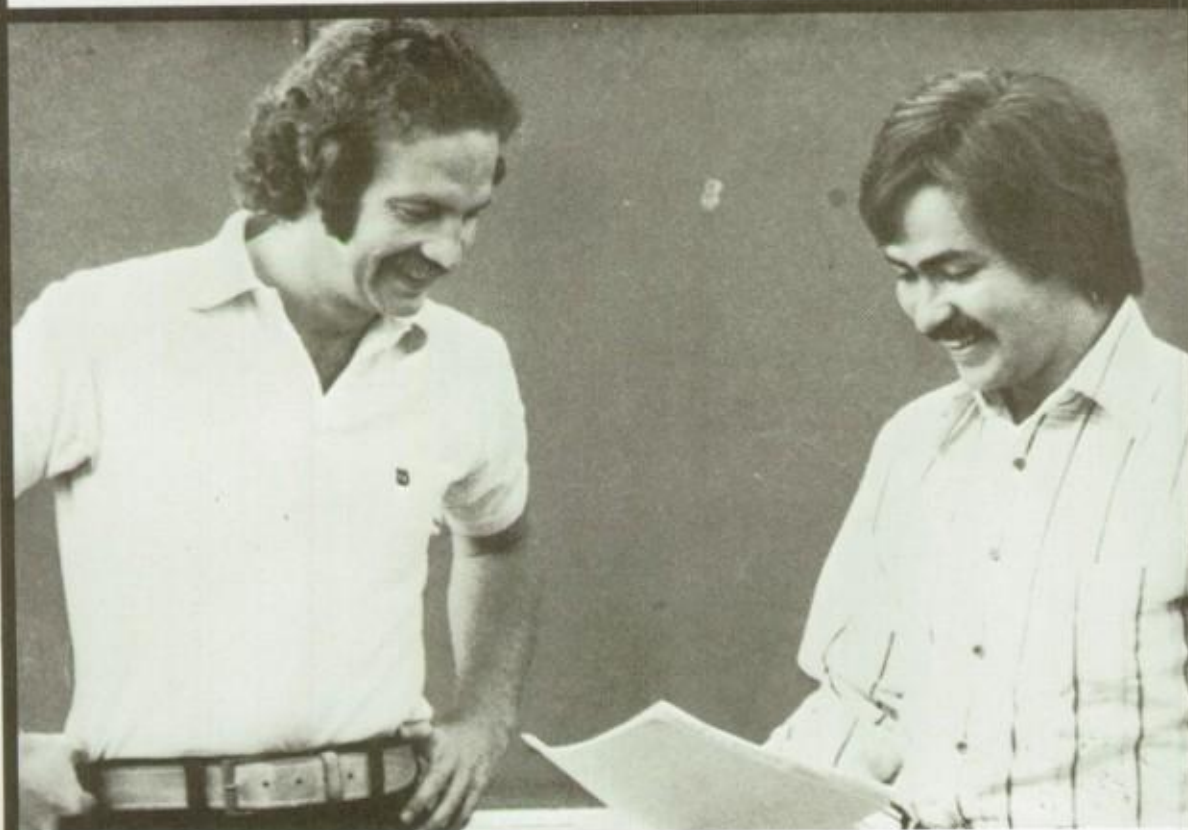

"I believe that freedom depends upon the maturity level of the individual. When he is not mature enough to handle himself and therefore infringes on someone else's liberty, guidelines concerning freedom need to be established."

Robert Williams, English 2, English 3; assembly committee, sophomore class sponsor

"Out of all the skills that you have, your reading skills are the most vital for success. These skills start when students are at grade school level, and if they miss them, then it's hard for students to ever catch up."

Leone Bare, Reading Laboratory; Friendship Fund

"I am trying to teach that people are more important than class material. It is most important to know yourself and don't let other people make you into something else."

Gerald Kerschen, English 2, English 4; Friendship Fund, tennis

"Southeast offers many subjects. If you want a good education, Southeast has the opportunities many other high schools don't. I like to see the students taking advantage of them."

David Olson, English 3, English 4; literary magazine

"I try to counsel students in teaching moral values. My main purpose is in a supportive role to students as well as to the teachers and administration. I try to get across that each person has a basic role in life and that each human being has value. We work in finding his value to society."

Don Nichols, Impaired Hearing, Sign Language; Sign Language Club, Spirit Unlimited

"Don't give up the ship."

William Harrison, English 3,
English Comp and College Reading; English Department Coordinator

"Students are becoming more spirited these days in relation to school activities. The kinds of organizations offered now differ from the past ones because they have less regimentation."

Ann Dorrah, English 2, English
4; Spirit Unlimited

Fine facilities aid faculty, student spirit increases

"I do feel fortunate to have the use of the Southeast facilities since I have taught at other schools before transferring here four years ago."

Joanne Ponds, English 4; President
NEA

"When I first came to Southeast, I was impressed with the student leadership. Then there came a lull for three or four years, but this is the most positive year in quite awhile."

June Dirks, English 2, English
Comp and College Reading;
Assembly Committee

"I feel that students have settled down over the past few years, but I think it's bad for them because they don't realize problems or things that could be changed. They just don't care to try to better the situation. Of course, this makes my job easy, but still I feel that it is bad."

Marguerite Grandy, English 3,
A.P. English; American Education Week

Grammarians voice concern for youths' interests

"I definitely feel that there is too much unwillingness to work. I have only one class that is completely willing to work, and it is a kind of apathy that scares me to death."

Sharon Thompson, English 4, DEEP

"When I first started teaching, students were more interested in the world events and the happenings around them. Today they seem to be more interested in their own personal lives."

Pamella Dixon, English 2, English 3 (DEEP); Bicycle Club

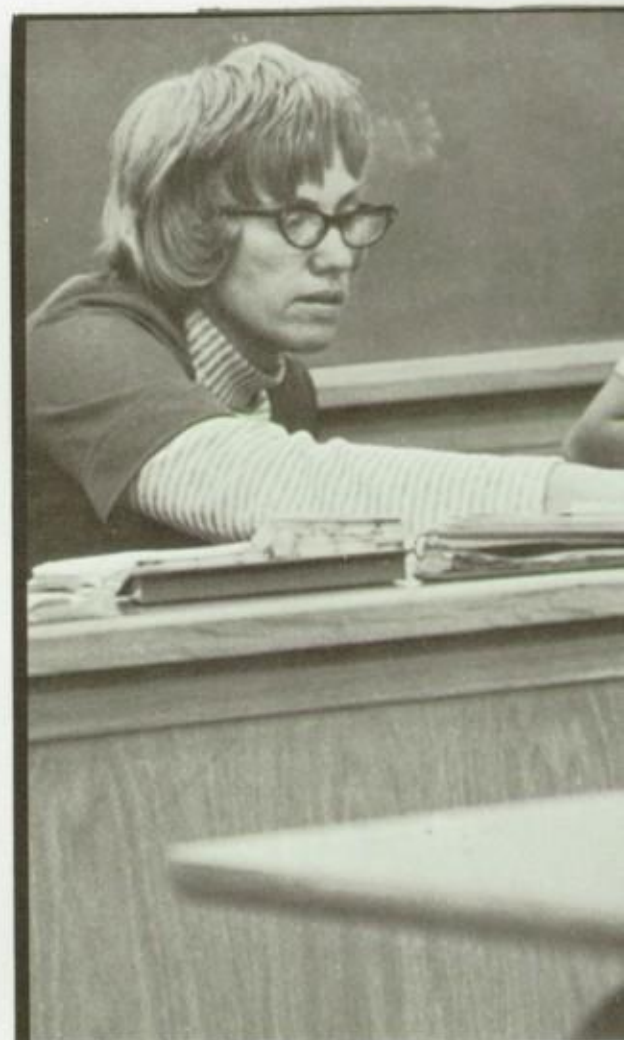

"I would like to go to the mini-course and make English an elective. English has become a joke to too many kids."

Linda Meyer, English 3

"I love working with students and guiding them, not only in the area of sound reporting, but in being able to cope with the pressures, the disappointments and the happy times they will face in life."

Paula Simons, English 2, Journalism; Here's Southeast, Hoofbeats, Stampede, Press Club

"I like Southeast much better than junior high, which is where I came from. Here the students are much quieter and more mature."

Nadine Williams, EMH; American Education Week, Spirit Unlimited

"Latin is important because it provides a background for many other subjects and languages. My advice to those graduating from Southeast is to see the world."

Mary Chambers, English 2, Latin 2; social committee

"Teacher salaries are one thing I would like to change here. I think we are approximately forty-third on the teachers' pay list in schools across the U.S. However, I would not consider striking even though other states have had to pay more to get teachers as a result of it."

Ruby Gubitz, Debate, English 2, Mass Media, Speech 1; NFL

"I love teaching! There is honestly nothing I would rather be doing. I think it is an excellent profession."

Susan Andrews, English 2, Drama 1; Assembly Committee, Banner Girls

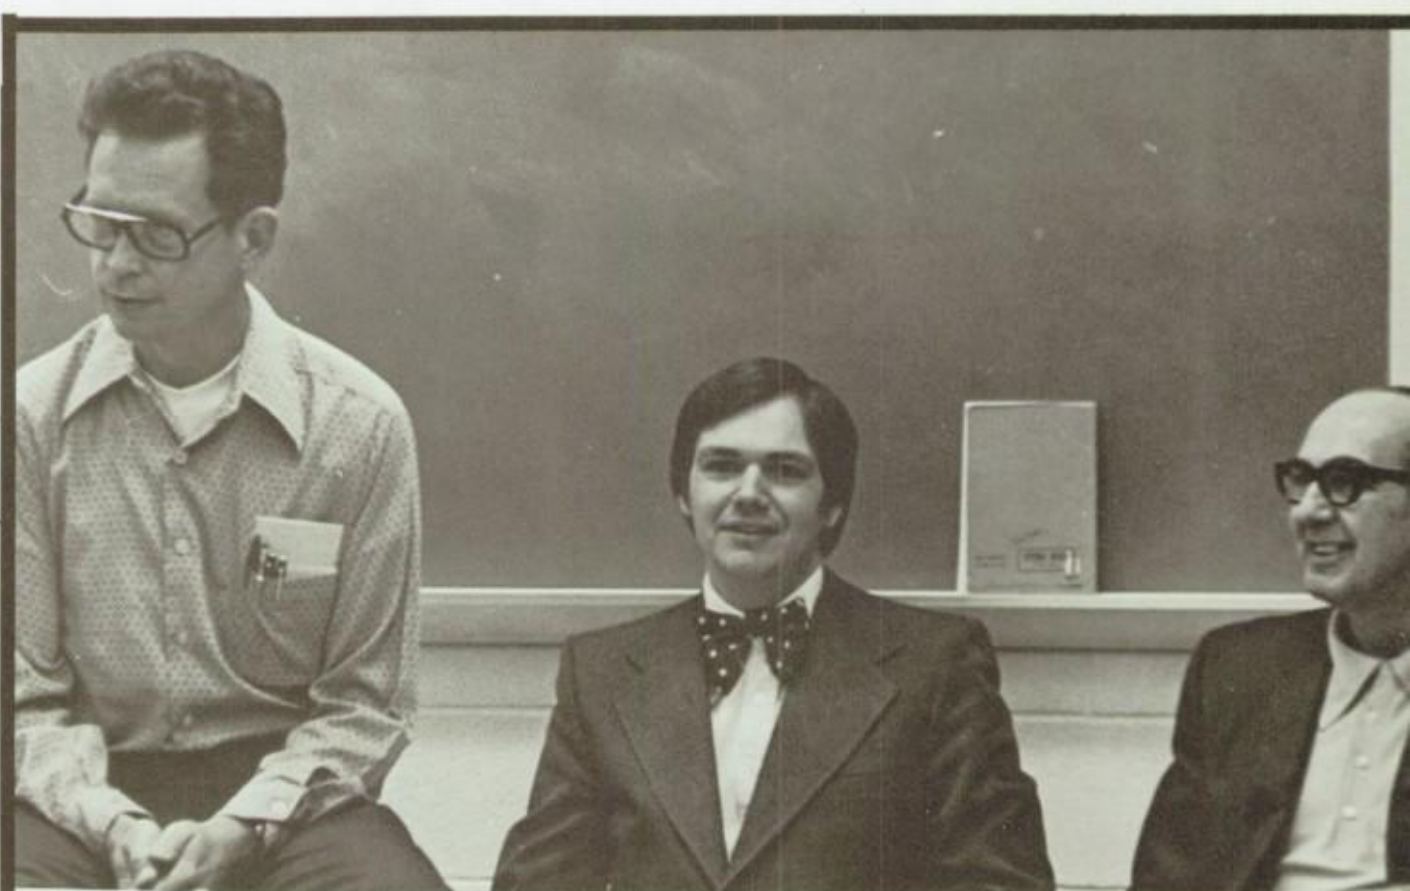

"I think the best thing about Southeast is my being here."

Frank Jensen, English 3, English Comp and College Reading; graduation exercises, junior class sponsor

"School involvement is definitely decreasing. In the past years there was more student participation. But the key to a club is the activeness, not the size."

Marvin Huffman, English 2, English 3; Photography Club, ticket sales.

"I definitely believe that students generally are displaying a more positive attitude toward education than in recent years; probably because of the ending of the Viet Nam war and the draft, and the subsequent demise of rebellion on college campuses."

Garland Stricklin, English 3, English Comp and College Reading; American Education Week

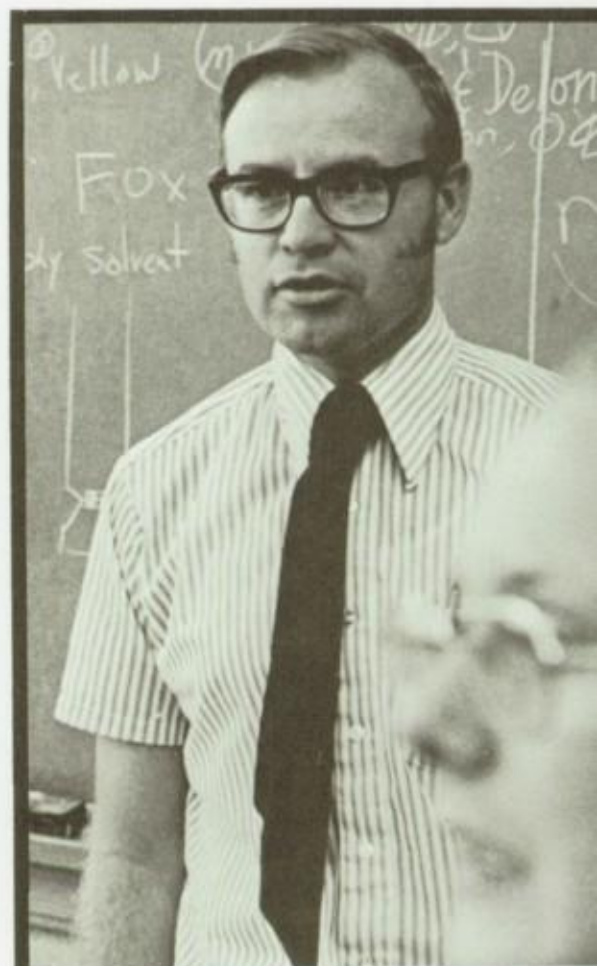

"I'd like to see more unity between the kids, not as sophomores, juniors, and seniors, but as a whole."

Glenn Clark, Biology, Botany; social committee

"Too many students are busy with extra-curricular activities to do much in school. The sophomores I teach are not self-confident enough to conduct themselves as science students."

Kenneth Smith, Biology; social committee

"The lack of facilities is probably the biggest handicap as far as a science teacher is concerned. The room looks like it's adequate in size and everything, but if you start doing labs it's pretty hard to get anything done with only two little sinks in the room and the equipment that's going to involve any type of lab that you have."

Sheldon Bergstrom, Biology; Science and Math Club

Laboratories provide technical training

"The students should be more involved. Many have jobs that keep them from becoming involved."

Marion Hodges, Astronomy, Physics, I.S.I.S.; Science, Coordinator

"Students make better use of their time than before."

James Madden, Chemistry, Geology

"Students are okay in their own way, and I think school spirit is coming back up."

H.M. Rathmel, Study Hall

"Student attitudes are changing. The hippie movement is going out. They (students) should have more interest in learning, so they will be prepared. Students are becoming more liberal minded than in the past. However, student spirit is declining because other activities and jobs take time away."

Walter Lohrentz, Biology, Physiology

"What upsets me is the fact that all people seem to be infringing on others rights and may cause injury in doing so."

Roland Long, Biology, Zoology; All School Project, Spirit Unlimited

"School spirit in athletics seems to be going down because there are fewer students going out for sports, while dances and parties increase."

Floyd Bayer, Aeronautics, Chemistry

"I am pleased with the students' attitude. They have lots of openness and approach life realistically."

Doug Schroeder, Home Mechanics, Drafting 1, 2, 3, 4; American Education Week.

"I don't agree with the part of the attendance policy that states that no student shall be taken from class without permission from their parent."

Mike Young, Drivers Ed.

Industrial Arts teaches trade work, hobbies

"I wish that there was less paperwork in connection with my job."
Corwin Vanderford, Metal, Plastics

"Students here at Southeast express themselves as they wish. They need not ask for more privileges, but they need to learn to discipline themselves with the freedom they are allowed."

James Deckinger, Drivers Ed; Baseball

"I think there is no real solution to attendance. You can't make them come, unless they're under 16. It's a hassle to call parents because you can't get ahold of them and the only times you can are at dinner-time or late at night."

William Draut, Drivers Ed.; social committee

"I attempt to give the student some basic knowledge and understanding of all automobile systems."

Everett Houser, Auto Information

"I try to get active student participation in the curriculum offered in my department."

Bill Lantz, Auto Mechanics

"The school spirit seems to be increasing. I think this is great, although it seems when the chips are down, the spirit is down. If the football team is bad, so is the spirit."

Randolph Kasper, Woods 1, 2;

Pride permeates throughout school

"In the time I've been at Southeast, students' attitudes seem much better toward school activities. Yet, the enthusiasm could be greater."

Mike Shay, Business

"I try to strive for success in my classes."

Birl Petersen, Typing 3, Business Composition; RAFT representative

"I want my students to get along with people, become sincere, and learn how to be cooperative. I don't cheat on them, and I don't expect them to cheat me."

Linda Morgan, Business, Office Education

"The mood of the students is reflected to a great extent by what is happening on the national scene. The extreme restlessness that we experienced in the late '60's seems to be disappearing."

Hulda Stucky, Shorthand, Typing; assembly committee

"Accounting can be a big help to students when they get to college. Those continuing in accounting and business will find it an enormous help."

LaVon Clark, Business, business coordinator

"Hopefully my business law course will help students when they will have to deal with situations when they are adults."

Doris Decker, Business

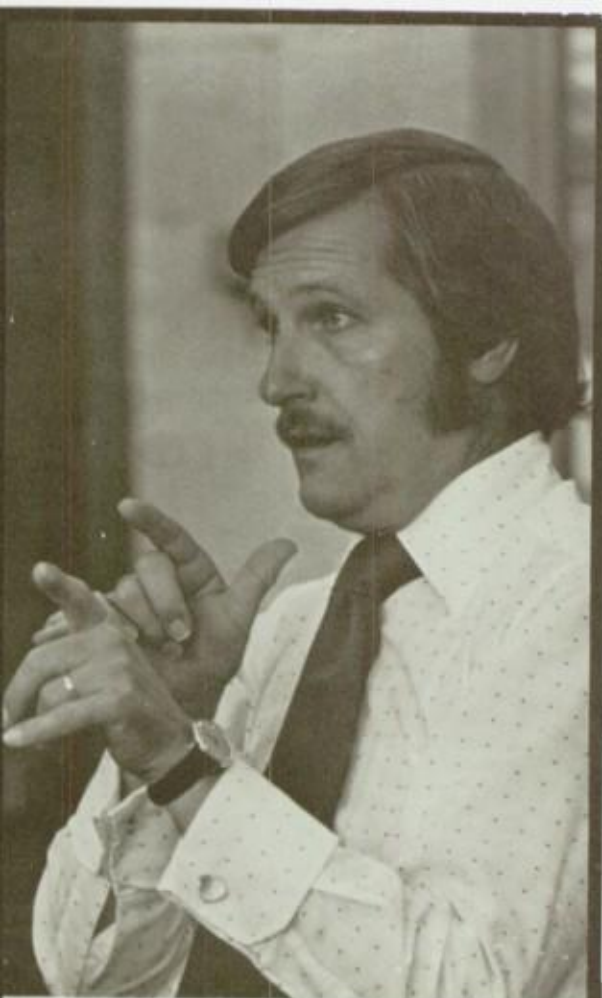

"If there was one thing I would like to see changed at Southeast, it would be less paper in the hall between classes and lunch."

Michael Hockett, Business Arithmetic, Distributive Education, Salesmanship; bookstore, Distributive Education Club

"I like the feeling of pride and spirit here. The whole school seems to be permeated with the knowledge that Southeast is best!"

Doris Mayhew, Foods

"Students should develop self-respect for themselves and for the people and happenings around them. You only get out of life what you put into it."

Vernon Nicholson, Choraleers, Madrigals, Junior Misses, Boys' Ensemble, Sophomore Choir

"I try to get my students to enjoy their music even if they don't go into it professionally, and to discipline themselves through their music."

Sandra Miller, Girls' Glee, Girls Ensemble

"The change in student attitude toward music has almost reversed itself since last year. Many kids started going to concerts last year and I think they enjoyed them."

Steve Luttrell, Orchestra, Stage Band, Music Theory

Verbal quality instigates learning

"I think that there was an apathetic approach to school for awhile, but now it's swinging back to normalcy. Apathy is normal, but not in extremes. Maybe youth is starting to see that to solve some of the world's problems they need an education."

John Wolverton, Trigonometry,

Analytical Geometry, Geometry, Algebra 2

"Today most students have less initiative and willingness to work, and they do not see a need for an education."

Doug Fulton, Algebra 1, 2, Geometry

"Teens are wonderful to teach because they are pliable enough to know 'how' and mature enough to ask 'why'."

Sue Neal, Algebra 2, Geometry, Trigonometry; Spirit Unlimited

"There is always room for improvement in a department. Ours is a good one but I would like to see the computer used in other classes besides Algebra 2."

Pat Gillenwater, Geometry, Algebra 1

"They (students) don't take school as seriously. But there is a trend coming back and they are beginning to realize that effort is needed."

Wilma Bozarth, Geometry, Algebra 1; social committee

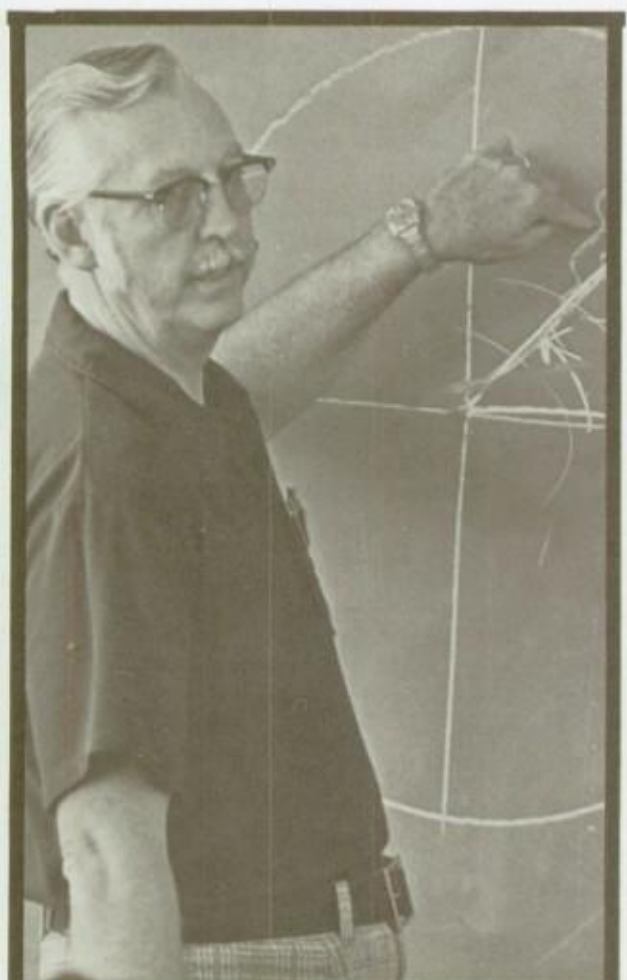

"They (students) expect things that aren't necessary. For example, a smoking area is not necessary. It's not important from the standpoint of health."

Howard Jacobs, Fine Arts; Fine Arts Coordinator

"I'm trying to communicate self-confidence, concentration, control, and the ability to perform efficiently."

Ruth McCormick, Drama 1, 2, 3; Thespians

"The students of today have lost a lot of competitive spirit, not only in sports but in class as well. Students just haven't shown the desire to learn."

Noland Wallace, Geometry, Algebra 2, Trigonometry, Analytical Geometry; Credit Union Representative

"Some students take my class because they thought it would be easy, and some take it to learn."

Linda Taylor, Introduction to Algebra

"I try to communicate to my students a few things about life, which they have to know to get around in society."

Billy Sherich, Geometry, Algebra 2, Principles of Math; Photography Club

Languages continue patronage, tradition

"I wish we could offer different courses to meet the needs of all the students, whether the classes be large or small."

Marlin Schrag, German 1, 2;
German Club

"I'm very happy with the French Department's new pilot program for French I. The students speak better French in a shorter amount of time, and they can also progress at their individual speeds."

Connie Hay, French 1, Spanish 1

"The larger the school gets, the less the students get involved. They are lost in the crowd, and it is up to teachers and school leaders to stimulate interest in school activities. It is necessary to make each student feel that he is wanted and needed."

Helen Hiebert, Spanish 1, 3, 4, 5; Foreign Language Coordinator; Spanish Club

"Going to school is a full-time job for a student, and if you don't attend you're hurting yourself and defeating a privilege. It is my business to teach a language, but I try to teach as a whole person."

Kathryn Weins, Spanish 1, 2

"Southeast rates among the best schools in the nation academically and physically. It offers an outstandingly wide range of courses, something for everyone. The physical aspects of the building are an educator's dream. Students should realize the opportunities offered and feel it a privilege to be able to take advantage of them."

Helen Hageman, French 1, 2, 3, 4; French Club

"Many times when students are given privileges, they don't accept the responsibilities that go along with them. I feel that students are allowed enough privileges."

Michael Schlyer, Ceramics, Design; Art Club

"I like high school students. This may be selfish, but the students make me feel younger."

Don Weddle, Art; Art Club

"The grading system should be changed. I'd rather teach for the joy of teaching and have students learn for the joy of learning."

Verna Buchanan, Child Development, Home and Family; Human Relations

"Open lunch is good and I like the longer lunch hour because it gives the students a chance to eat where they want. But I do not like students who come up with excuses to get out of class, and students sometimes abuse this privilege."

Gene Pepperkorn, Home Economics; Home Economics Coordinator.

"The makeup of the student body is the best thing about Southeast. There's lots of good solid closeness of family units contributing to students. There are still some nice traditions in school."

Fonda Wren, Home Economics; Occupational Home Economics Club

Phys Ed promotes good health, exercise

"I think the attendance policy this year stinks. It takes an act of God to get rid of somebody."

Jim Givens, physical education; varsity basketball, sophomore football

"Students have the privileges but some students can't see the difference between privileges and rights."

Jim Davie, physical education;
varsity football, golf

"In the past students have not had very much spirit. This year I think we're on the way back up. Spirit Unlimited should give the students an organization they can be proud to belong to. I think that students have more spirit this year than in the past seven or eight."

Don Lamb, Athletic Director;
Lettermen Club, Scholarship Committee, ticket sales, student lounge

"The sports department could do more. We should emphasize lifetime sports such as tennis, running, swimming, and basketball. But activities such as weight lifting, golf, and archery don't stress the body enough to do much good for the body functions."

Charles Hatter, physical education; boys' swimming

"There is a big difference in society today, and kids seem to be a lot more open and they try to maintain their personal values more. I try to teach my students to be well-rounded and learn the main aspects of life."

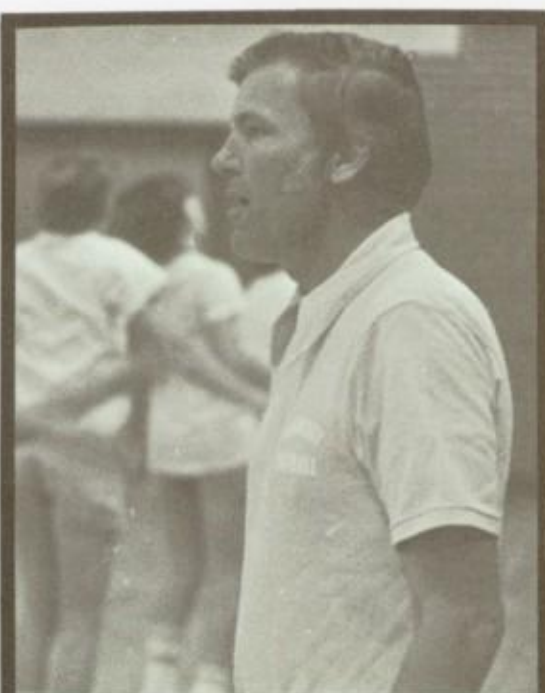

Betty Fugit, physical education;
girls' swimming, Sea Sprites tennis

"I think that Southeast is the best school in Wichita--faculty wise, facility wise, and student wise."

Dennis Cavalier, physical education; football

"I feel that involvement in school related activities is decreasing, because there are too many things to do outside of school."

Harold Brandenburg, physical education, coordinator; track, football

"There is no difference basically between the young people today than those five or ten years ago, except for the fact that young people today are forced to make adult decisions."

Linda Smith, physical education girls' track, volleyball

"Students are herded around like cattle. I would like to see a 15 minute break in the morning and in the afternoon."

Wanda McCaskey, physical education; gymnastics, Pompon Girls

"There is more interest in school itself today. The hippie type aren't as popular."

Donna Harris, physical education; basketball

"When the students come down here, they can enjoy themselves and the activities, and let off a little steam."

Marilyn Morris, physical education, coordinator; basketball

Office staff generates warm feeling

"Most all students that I've met in the office have been very friendly and considerate."

Carol Dunn, secretary

"It is definitely a challenge this year changing from elementary school to a secondary school. But I think I've accomplished whatever I've set out to do."

Charlene Smith, secretary

"No one could ask for any more in facilities, and I think it is great how the administration and faculty goes out of its way to help students get what they need in the way of education."

Arla Weiss, enrollment

"Since the new attendance policy came into effect, there is more parent interest in student attendance."

Lois Jonker, attendance

"There is really nothing that I would change about Southeast. The students are friendly, the facilities are good, and I think it is a very good school."

Julie Long, audio-visual

"I enjoy working with books and students too."

Sherry Barnard, Assistant Librarian

"I feel that Southeast is the best in everything."

Janie Wilkie, treasurer

"Sophomores this year brought in more school spirit. It also seems that students are dressing up more for school and getting more involved."

Nadine Rogers, executive secretary

"I feel that, without the student body, there would be no need for us (the faculty). Because, we play the most important part in preparing them for the future."

Charolette Thompson, secretary

"Since I graduated from East High School, I feel that Southeast is a much nicer building."

Mary Owen, registrar

Personnel provide services, protection

Custodian Leo Steel finds that clearing the halls of trash after the noon hour can be a time consuming job.

"I think the privileges that the students have are being abused too much. This causes the faculty to have problems keeping control."

Sylvester Wilson, security guard

"If someone isn't geared to go to school, and they don't want to learn, they won't. They're wasting both their time and the school's time."

Judy Brown, security guard

"It's interesting educationally and I enjoy my work. The whole plant is the finest in the city of Wichita."

Jim Berry, asst. engineer

"My responsibility is to take care of heat, air conditioning and all mechanical equipment. I've been doing it all my life."

Robert Busch, chief engineer

Variety in workers' personal opinions prompted student and faculty interest in the custodial staff, cafeteria workers and security.

Bringing a new phase of cultural interest to the school, Cyril Baker, custodian and former sub-postmaster in England, spoke not only to Southeast's debate class, but also to classes at various schools across the city. Comparing

"I think the students here in the United States have much more freedom and many more after-school activities than those in England. The English concentrate on academics." (Cyril Baker, custodian)

England's political system to that of the U.S., Baker provided first-hand information to his listeners.

Problems generated for the cleaning staff, and as head custodian Jack Lanford explained, it took 50 man-hours or more in the summer to just de-gum the furniture.

Involved in a different way of helping students, the cooks were concerned with

"I think I could pick the menu for the school better than a computer can, but we prepare what we're told." (Mabel Willis, dietician)

the current inflationary prices. As the head dietician Mabel Willis explained, the approximate one-fourth of the student body eating in the cafeteria were affected by rising costs in food.

REGIONAL

School is much more than classes. It is an experience, sometimes broken down into smaller pieces, such as nine-week terms. It can also be described as a union of circles. The year, or larger circle, is split into many smaller circles, representing the lives of the individuals in the school.

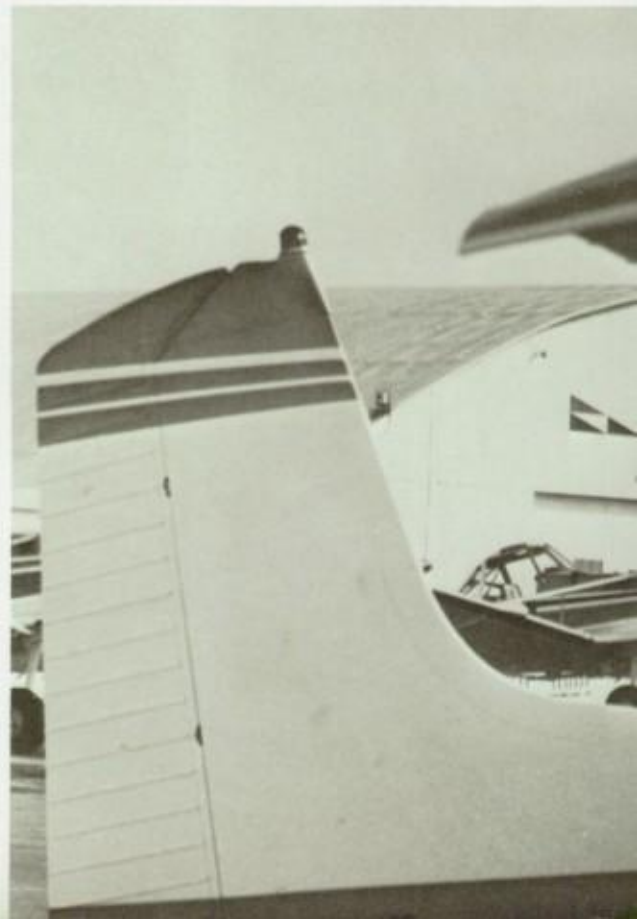

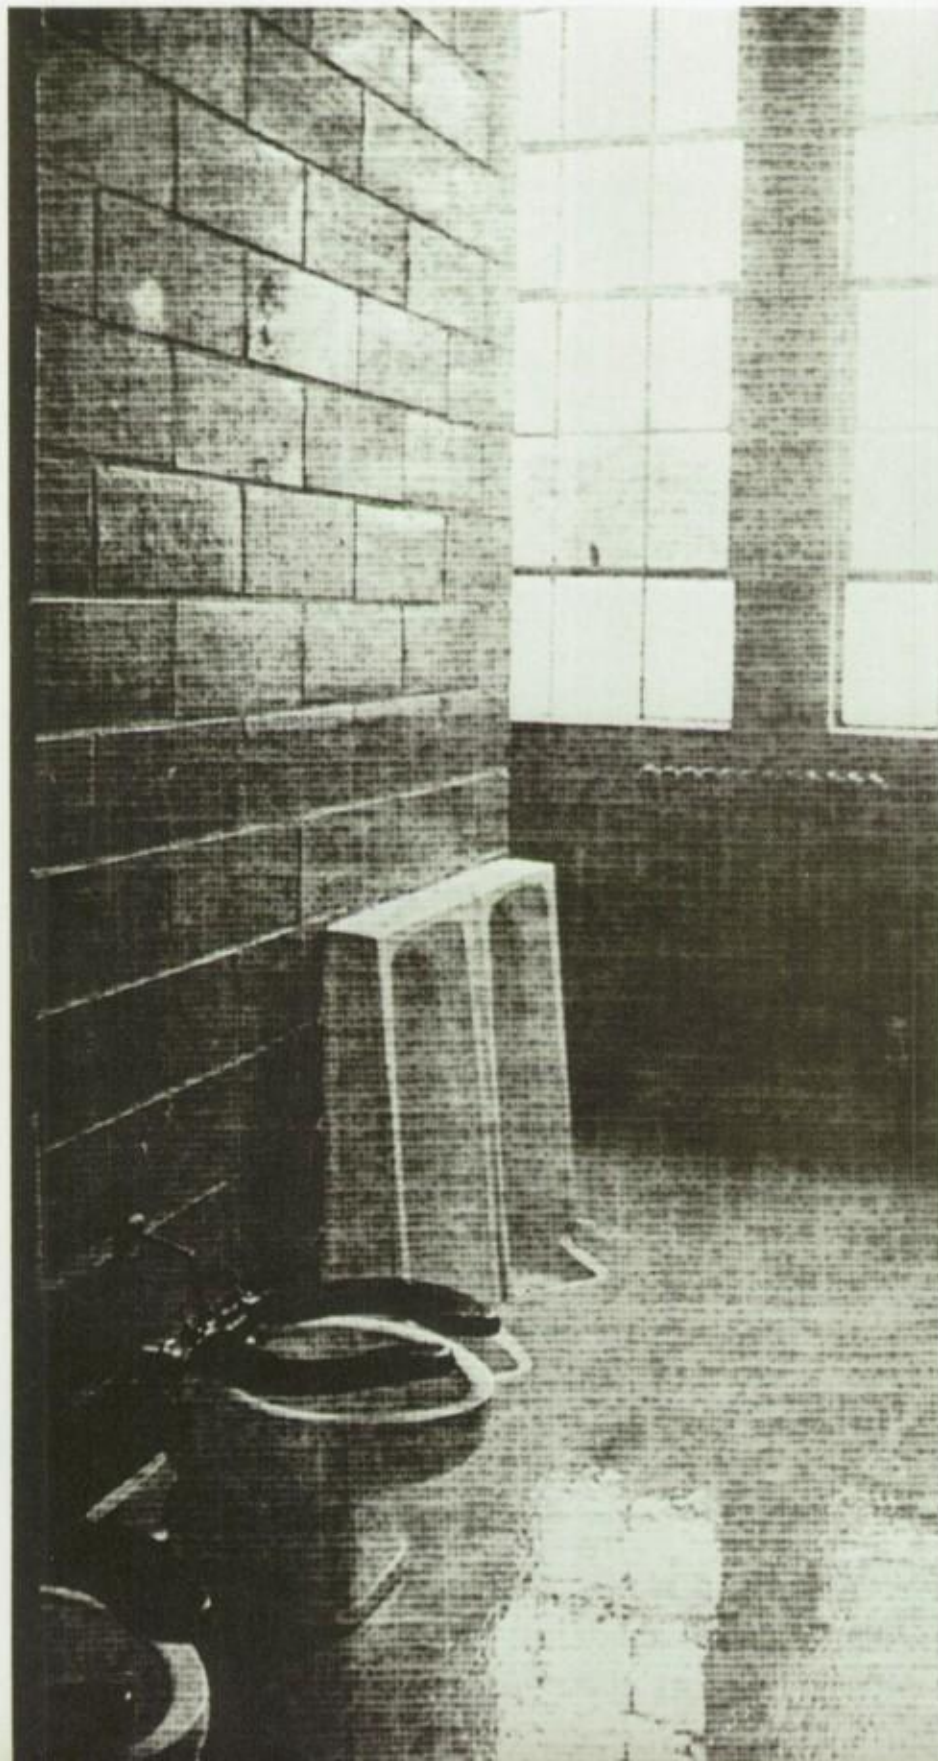

Whichever description fits best, they are all similar. School is a union of lives, brought together for one purpose—to learn. Sometimes that purpose accounts for no constructive results, but usually both the individual and the society benefit.

Through aiding in the drive for ratification of the school bond, volunteers from Southeast and other area schools learned about some intricacies in politics, as well as the below-average conditions present in many Wichita schools. Members of the Stampede staff worked with School Board officials in the publication of S.T.U.B. (Students To Undoubtedly Benefit), a publication designed to gain public support for the issue. The bond, which was approved by 5,000 votes, furnished over 36 million dollars for the improvement and renovation of 45 elementary, junior high, and high schools, as well as funds for the construction of two new schools, and the acquisition of a site for a third school in the area.

Southeast students were also involved in the controversial issue of student smoking privileges. The city-wide Student Youth Council, with representatives from each Wichita High School, voted to recommend to the School Board a change in the current rule of no-smoking on the school grounds. A lesser rule of no-smoking only in the school building itself would have, according to the Council, solved two problems. Smoking students would have been happier, and the residents located in the immediate vicinity of the school would probably have been pleased as well, since the students who left school to smoke usually ended up across the street in someone's yard, a problem for both the owner and the administration. The School Board, however, voted to leave the rule as it stood.

Although the smoking rules weren't changed, the lunch-hour rules were. This year, besides having "open lunch" which allowed students to leave the campus, the students were given a full hour, instead of the forty-eight minutes previously allotted.

However, the longer lunch period allowed more students to take advantage of open lunch, as shown by the problems occurring early in the year. Frequently, those who either walked to a carry-out food store or brought their lunch, lounged on the lawns of nearby residences, sometimes trampling flowers or gardens and all-too-often leaving paper or other refuse as a momentum. Repeated complaints from the residents threatened the very existence of open lunch, but numerous threats and warnings from the administration, the Student Council and the student newspaper finally brought the incidents to a halt.

Unfortunately, threats and warnings proved to be futile against yet another problem which occurred early in the year. Traditionally, as part of the Homecoming festivities, each class builds a float which is designed to illustrate a given theme. The floats are judged by a group of teachers and the winner is announced during halftime of the Homecoming game, where the floats are displayed.

Rivalry between classes is always high during that time, but this year that rivalry turned to violence. Repeated outbreaks of egg-throwing and other forms of vandalism marred the Homecoming activities so much, in fact, that on one such encounter, several east side grocery stores reported being sold out of eggs. These circumstances finally led to the banning of the float competition by the administration.

Although school seemed the most important thing, what happened around us affected our lives to a great extent. During the year, the general economy of the nation was down and unemployment rates soared in many cities. Nevertheless, in Wichita it seemed there were too many jobs for the number of workers available. In fact, the economy here was booming; it was as if the recession had not caught up with us, even though its companion, inflation, had been a long-time resident of the Air Capitol. Still the citizens didn't forget the rest of the country's plight.

After Watergate, the people of the city, and of the nation, grew more wary as to how their government was run. In Wichita, controversies arose over ambulance service to the city's residents, and ended with the resignation of the man under suspicion. Also in the city, the Sedgwick County Sheriff was indicted for suspicion of invasion of privacy—otherwise called wire tapping. This being an election year, the offices of Kansas Governor and United States Senator were up for grabs. And the elections of these two positions proved to be two of the closest in the country. In that election, although the national average was lower than usual, in Kansas the percentage of the population that voted was the highest in several election years.

These instances proved that the people were concerned and that the young people were involved as well. All these involvements promoted learning, and learning continued to be a part of life.

NATIONAL

While local politics instigated involvement in community affairs, Wichita and the rest of the country stood in shock as Richard Nixon became the first president in history to resign his executive position.

Taking place on August 8, 1974, the resignation offered a grateful end to the two-year old Watergate scandal. Beginning with the investigation of the 1972 burglary of the Democratic National Committee offices, the probing, led by Senator Sam Ervin and Judge John Sirica, brought out a wealth of government corruption. It also was the cause of vice-president Spiro T. Agnew's resignation.

But the torn reputation of Nixon served as the hardest blow to the country's security. While the barely inaugurated vice-president Gerald Ford stepped into the White House, Nixon and his family moved to San Clemente, taking with them the former president's financial troubles, poor health, and fragmented pride.

However, the newly appointed president and family temporarily restored national security with a casual Midwestern approach to their good fortune. This simple openness proved the Fords to be a fresh breeze in the long stale Watergate atmosphere.

Ford chose to concern himself with the nation's disastrous economy, which, forsaken in past months, was battling inflation and recession. Prices were up 12 per cent, layoffs were heavy, and the stock market appeared to be headed for another crash.

Areas around the country were affected differently. One example was Detroit, the nation's automobile capital. If people were in the market for a car at all, chances they were seeking a compact, gas-saving vehicle. But companies attempted to combat disaster by offering unprecedented cash rebates.

Yet, all industries were not suffering, as the oil and sugar companies clearly demonstrated. In fact, the price of a 5 lb. bag of sugar shot up as much as $12. Shortages of both these products was the main reason for their financial success.

On a more private level, many personal crisis became important news. Often involving the public emotionally. Three such instances were the supposed kidnapping of Patricia Hearst, the continuing Kennedy tragedies as Teddy Jr. lost a leg because of bone cancer, and the mastectomies of Betty Ford and Happy Rockefeller, wife of new vice-president Nelson Rockefeller. Their courageous sharing of the ordeal led to a new awareness of cancer and showed the importance of check-ups.

But many happenings were not as grim as these events, as the nation looked for devices to relieve the tension of the country's problems. The prevailing atmosphere was one of nostalgia, perhaps a psychological desire to return to an era better than the current one.

No longer were long hair and blue jeans the all prevailing image. Sparked by the movie "The Great Gatsby," men and women began to change their appearance, reverting to layered hair and clothing styles.

Another movie that dominated the screens was "The Exorcist," a film that owed most of its success to a phenomenal publicity campaign. Sporting a 12-year-old girl who could float in mid-air and spout green vomit among other things, this demonic movie was enough of a revolting curiosity to make it one of the all-time high box-office grossers.

In the popular music field, multi-talented artists like Elton John and Joni Mitchell continued to control record sales. Stressing an examination of the inner-self, these and other favorites wrote and performed their personal blend of folk-rock music.

Also stressing an examination, but of the outer-self, were the streakers. With thousands of people shedding inhibitions as well as clothes, streaking occurred everywhere. Having started in the early spring, the fad disappeared by mid-summer, leaving as quickly as it appeared.

On a more somber note, the year was often marred by the death of beloved public figures. Aviator Charles Lindbergh, comedian Jack Benny, prolific novelist Jacqueline Susann, and jazz genius Duke Ellington were among those mourned.

However, no sadness was evident when Henry Aaron of the Atlanta Braves broke the long-standing home run record of Babe Ruth. In another athletic area, tennis courts and camps sprang up across the country. The organization of World Team Tennis moved the sport from a hushed country club atmosphere to the entertaining circus of arenas and field houses.

Another change was in the involvement of women in sports. Their long wanted quality proved to be realized as advances were made in athletic areas previously reserved for men.

Although these news-making events did not directly involve the populace of Wichita, the importance of these happenings helped to create an awareness of similar activities in the city.

This led to a further concern for city and national problems, again including students, but in a different and worthwhile kind of learning.

The Southeast Golden Buffalo's football squad achieved a first in the 17-year history of the school. In regular season competition, they remained undefeated.

season record. The team also held first in total offense and defense.

Although injuries plagued the Buffs at the first of the year, they were able to slide over many opponents. Possibly the greatest victory came the final City League game. Southeast rolled over last year's champs, Wichita High School North, 16-9. This topped off the Buffs best year.

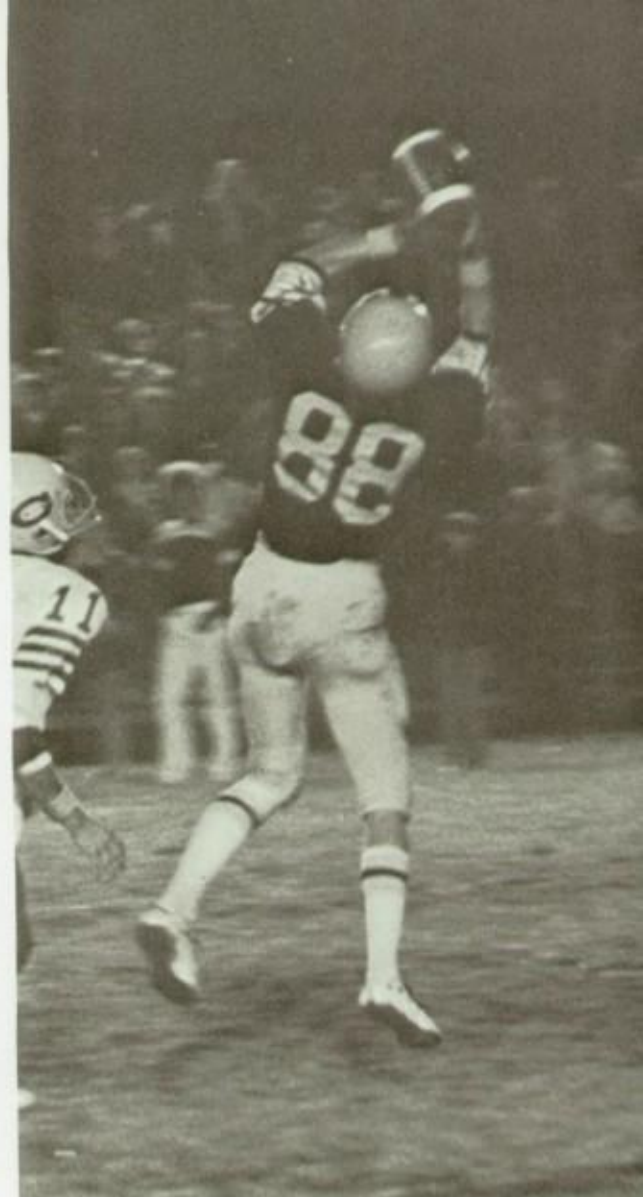

"This year has really been a tribute to the seniors. They have led the team well. When they look back at their yearbooks twenty years from now, they'll have something to look at." (Coach Davie)

The defense was a strong point. During the year the defense held opponents to under 100 yards per game. The offense,

"I think we deserved it, because of the work we have put in. It's great to go undefeated and to know no one can say that they beat you." (Co-Captain Jim Maloney)

Try at state brings second

Backed by some 2,000 boosters and students, the varsity football team headed to Kansas City to face three-time champion Shawnee Mission North for the state title.

Ranked Number One coming into the contest, the Indians displayed a potent running attack, which amassed over 300 yards and took advantage of several Southeast turnovers to crush the Buffs' hopes for an upset, 30-0.

After a tight first half, the Buffs, trailing by only 6-0, came out with high hopes. However, those hopes were soon dashed when Shawnee Mission exploded for 24 second-half points.

It was the fourth state championship for the Indians since the beginning of tournament play in 1969. In Southeast's only other championship appearance, the Buffs fell to Shawnee Mission South, 7-6 in 1972.

Southeast qualified for the title game by downing Shawnee Mission Northwest, 14-0, in a defensive contest played at Cessna Stadium. Both teams remained scoreless until the fourth quarter when Jay Rodney, senior wingback, plunged over from the one to provide the needed winning margin. Jim Maloney, senior linebacker, added the final score on a 35-yard run following a fumble recovery.

Sophs, B-team follow varsity in success

Perfect records in football are becoming quite common at Southeast. While the Varsity recorded a 9-0 regular season slate, the sophomores were not outdone as they compiled a 6-0 record for first-year coach, Mr. Bruce DeHaven.

Defensively, the sophs were led by Maurice Moore, David Hanning, and Kevin Potuck. Giving up an average of only four points per contest, the Buffs also shut out four opponents, while averaging over 30 points offensively.

"We weren't a terribly big team, but we were successful because of all the kids great attitude and terrific spirit. They were a real joy to coach." (Coach DeHaven)

Heading the offensive attack were Floyd Smith, Ronnie Hunter, Tom Utter, and Bill Ownby.

Falling just short of a perfect season, the Junior Varsity football team led by Mr. Dennis Cavalier ended up with a 5-1 record.

After recording relatively easy wins in the early season, the B-team dropped a to give for our loss, they simply out-played us. I knew what to expect but I don't think the players were mentally prepared." (Coach Cavalier) heartbreaker to Kapaun-Mt. Carmel, 16-6.

Pleased with the team's offensive output, the Coach cited juniors Toby Paige, Mike McAlpine, Mike Bradley, and Jim Johnson as standouts. Although the team's overall defense was weak, the play of juniors Call Ammons and Brian Landeck were bright spots.

In regional competition at Echo Hills, the Buffs fell to South, despite another first-place run by White.

Injuries and prevailing weather conditions again contained the Buffs as they fell to fourth place with 92 points in the final meet at Salina. Ironically, Southeast beat and later tied the eventual state champs, Shawnee Mission North, earlier in the season. Although Southeast had more runners place in the top ten with David and Tom White at second and eighth respectively, and junior Mark Williams in the fifth position, Hayes and junior Richard Winkler were slowed by injuries.

In regular season play the girls finished with a 6-0-1 record. Led by Megan and Pam the girls edged Carroll and East High by only three points to capture another City crown.

Moving into regional competition at East High, only Megan emerged as a Seeded number six against top tennis players from Kansas, Megan advanced to the third round before being ousted by the number three seed, Ann Clark of Shawnee Mission South, 6-2, 6-3.

Teams place with youth, inexperience

It was a building year for Girls' Golf which consisted mostly of sophomore and freshmen as they wrapped up their dual meets with a 3-4 record.

In regional competition, the four-player team of junior Margo Romig, sophomores Betsy Cadmen and Leslie Rounds, and freshman Kay Rothfelder placed fourth. After taking second place surprisingly finished third in state competition.

Not unlike the golf team, the Girls Varsity Basketball team began the season relatively inexperienced.

Losing the service of three seniors early in the year, the team's depth was provided by undergraduates. Jane Pridgett, junior, and Kit Lewis, senior, helped compile a 4-3 record, good for third place in the league.

Experience, versatility lead cagers

Opening the season with a wealth of talent and ability, plus a new coach, the Varsity Basketball Team had high hopes of improving on last year's dismal 6-13 finish.

Leading the Buff's hopes were seniors Mike McBride and Willie Howard, both starters from the 1974 team. McBride, carrying a 17.5 scoring average, was a first-team All City selection.

The Buffs began the season by beating small, but aggressive Salina Central, 57-51. After picking up league wins over North and Heights, the Buffs faced No. 1 rated South. Before a packed house, Southeast handed the Titans their first defeat, 65-54.

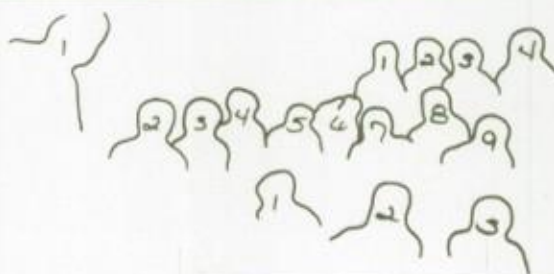

By virtue of the win Southeast took over the top ranking until the team fell to Kapaun-Mt. Carmel, 83-78. Completing the first round of league play with a win over Carroll, the Buffs headed to the North Invitational Tournament, where they captured the title with wins over Wyandotte and North.

Southeast's next opponent, Heights, replaced the Buffs to the top by knocking off previously No. 1 rated Hutchinson, while taking the No. 2 spot themselves. Before a capacity crowd the stage was set for a showdown between the state's top two teams and more important by the City League lead.

The teams battled to a 28-28 tie at intermission, but in the second half it was all Southeast. Senior Bo Martin led the Buff surge with 10 second-half points. Although Heights pulled close several times, the Southeast fastbreak crushed the rally for a 62-57 win. The victory kept Southeast in the No. 1 spot and gave them a one-game cushion in league standings.

Holding down Kansas' top prep school ranking and the city league lead, the Southeast Varsity Basketball team began the last leg of the campaign against the South Titans.

Before a packed house at the South gymnasium, South's strong inside attack sent the Buffs to defeat by an 83-70 margin. The following night, the Buffs played host to No. 3 Hutchinson. Led by inspired play from senior Bryan Hanning and junior Grant Davis, an undermanned Buffs team beat the Salt Hawks.

Despite the loss to South, Southeast retained the top spot with the win over Hutch. The Buffs, however, faced another showdown against second-place Kapaun-Mt. Carmel. The Buffs dropped an earlier decision to the Crusaders by a score of 73-68.

In the Southeast gym the Buffs fell behind early and trailed by six points at the half. In the second half the Buffs pulled back to lead by as many as four

JV, Sophs develop teams, awareness, sportsmanship

This year's team had many outstanding players. Forward David Schaefer led the team in scoring while his counterpart Dan Massey was a solid defensive player. The guards were led by Avery Sherrod, Tom Utter, and Rick Dempsey. One of the most improved players was center Ken Washington.

The Junior Varsity Basketball team was not a one-man show this year.

This season the team had, on the average, had three men in double figures every game. The team, which practiced with the varsity, almost held an identical record to the varsity.

Center Dudley Rutherford, junior, was a key in the team's impressive record. Mike Sowders and Tony Boggness, juniors, had a good scoring punch and gave leadership to the team.

Grapplers, gymnasts better seasons

Establishing a milestone year was the Southeast wrestling team. After a dismal finish last year, the team, under direction of Coach Mike Shay, came into a much better season.

Next year Coach Shay returns twelve lettermen. Of these nine are returning starters.

After a disappointing fifth-place finish last year the Southeast gymnastics team, under the direction of new Head Coach Mike Young, anticipates a much improved season.

Leading the Buff's hopes are seniors Brad Smith, Russell Horn, Dwight Kerr, and Randy Weatherly. The team suffered

The Southeast track team began work-out early this spring to prepare for another City League slate.

Displaying a unique double backhand during practice is senior letterman Chuck Caro.

During the hours of necessary practice, senior Dave Boyles works on a wicked topspin.

After closing out their worst season in 11 years, the Varsity Baseball team anticipated a vastly improved season.

The Buffs lost their hold on the city crown which they had held for the last two years, falling to a 2-12 league record. In addition, the Buffs failed to qualify for the state tournament for the first time in six years.

Returning 10 lettermen from last year's squad, senior leadership and much improved pitching were strong points.

"This year our pitchers have a lot more experience, and if our hitting and defense comes around, we should do real well." (Keith Hudson, junior)

Returnees build up teams' hopes

Not unlike the baseball team, the "Last year early season losses cost us because we had a shot at the title. We have the potential to win it this year, but we need to discipline ourselves better as athletes." (Coach Gerald Kerschen)

Varsity Tennis team expected to fare much better than in 1974.

With all six varsity members returning, the team had an excellent shot at dethroning last year's champ, Kapaun-Mt. Carmel, according to Coach Gerald Kerschen.

Leading the Buff's efforts were seniors Matt Mahaffy, Dave Boyles, and Chuck Caro, while juniors Scott Jabara and Jack Ritchie are expected to provide needed support.

Seniors, sophs lead squads in competition

Returning six lettermen from last year's second-place team, the Varsity Golf team began practice early in preparation for its first league meet with East.

Last year the Buffs were led by seniors Ed Stucky, Greg Hall, Steve Pankey, and Curt Seymour. Stucky and Hall placed third in state two-man competition, while

"Besides the six returnees, there will be a lot of other experienced golfers in the running for us. With the people we've got, we should have a real good shot at the title."
(Coach Jim Davie)

the four-man team of Pankey, Seymour, sophomore Jon Hall, and graduate Mike Coffman did not place.

With only one senior member, a young Girls' Gymnastic team held third place in the City League with a 3-2 meet record as of March 4.

Led by sophomores Liz Wright and Kathy Quick, the team captured its third win against West by a 75-53 margin. Liz

"Although we're a young team, the girls have really worked hard and I think we'll do real well."
(Coach Wanda McCaskey)

took all-around honors while Kathy placed first in both balance beam and floor exercise.

The team had one more meet before competing in the City League meet and then Regional and State Tournaments.

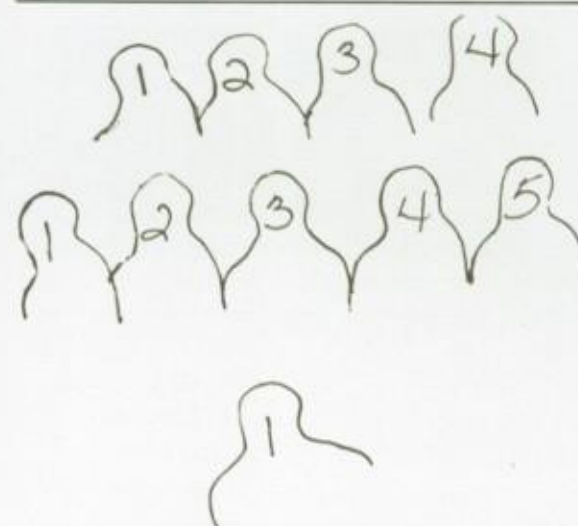

Leading the golfers' hopes for the City Title is Ed Stucky, senior.

Cindy Cushing, junior, concentrates intensely on her balance beam routine.

New Buffs 'pin up North' proving themselves experienced

Aided by experienced upperclassmen, sophomores began their first year at Southeast with Sophomore Orientation Day. Held Aug. 28, the day was designed to acquaint the incoming sophomores with their new surroundings.

With an emphasis on involvement and enthusiasm, juniors and seniors treated the new students to a variety of activities which included a spirit breakfast, honk parade, and an introductory assembly.

Inspired by the spirit of the upperclassmen, the sophomores entered into the school rivalry of Homecoming, and constructed a float for competition. Although the floats were cancelled due to egg throwing, their work was later used at the All School Project, held in May.

Another demonstration of sophomore spirit included a "Pin Up North" contest where students bought pins for their individual classes. Bellingring for the Salvation Army during the holiday season also involved sophomores.

Middle-class shows interest throughout year, activities

Enthusiasm was evident early in the year when the junior class girls initiated and entertained the incoming sophomores. The Junior-Sophomore Tea featured skits and activities, including an auction and honk parade, designed to welcome the Buffs new in a "spirited" way.

Homecoming activities also encouraged involvement. Junior students worked long hours on the float only to have to tear it down when the festivities were cancelled. Incidents of egg-throwing and vandalism marred the traditionally joyful Homecoming season with feelings of guilt for many students.

Ugly Man, held in December and January, featured Mike Bradly as the junior representative. The activity proved successful, bringing penny donations, the total amount received representing the class spirit.

Percentages of class members involved in clubs or other school-related activities proved, by the end of the year, that juniors were involved.

Scholastics, egg-throwing bring to end high school graduating year

Looking toward their year-end graduation, the senior class worked to surpass the underclassmen in overall spirit. Under the leadership of class president Maureen Hanks, seniors involved themselves in all class competitions and various outside activities.

Somewhat overzealous in their participation in Homecoming activities, this class contributed to the cancellation of float competition. Destroying underclassmen floats and property, these upperclassmen were among the students arrested for egg and brick throwing. However, senior men displayed their spirit at other football games by ringing the bell during Southeast's many touchdowns.

Redeeming themselves in early 1975, the upperclassmen won the annual Ugly Man Contest, held Jan. 6-10. Senior Doug Hart utilized his ugly face as the winning candidate.

Also demonstrating prowess in the areas of sports and scholastics, senior men and women carried through the year with victories in both fields. Football and basketball were well represented by senior lettermen and eight upperclassmen were honored by National Merit standing.

Under the editorship of Student Council President Mark Uhlig and publicity chairman Dee Mills, the Council published the first student directory

"I ran because I wanted to get involved. I wanted to know what was going on inside rather than being on the outside."

since 1970. Besides the actual listings, the directory also featured a supplement containing sports schedules and valuable information on school activities, organizations, and events.

Sponsored by Mr. James Powell and Mrs. Sue Neal, the group was also responsible for the schedule change to include an additional 10 minutes for lunch. The Homecoming Dance, held Oct. 26 was instigated by the Council. Showing a ► Being Student Council president isn't just getting up and making speeches, it's arm-wrestling other Student Council presidents, as senior Mark Uhlig proves at East High School.

Directory shows effort, government makes change

"The schedule change was accomplished in mid-July, and can be credited to good cooperation between Student Council and Dr. Kirby. The directory was proposed in May, and production took a lot more effort than we expected. I'm confident that it's the best that any Wichita school has ever produced."

Another profitable activity was the Friendship Fund campaign in October which netted $600.

German Club members, following the tradition established by sponsor Herr Merlin Schragg, participate in the annual caroling to German families and to the elderly.

Promoting the use of French as a language formed the basis for the activities of the French Club. A Christmas Fete, complete with a skit and a yule log cake, and a Marde Gras Fete, which included a French dinner, variety skits, and even "can-can" dancing, students learned how the French live.

Members also learned of life in France through listening to several guest speakers

"I love being in a foreign language club. People are people, no matter where they live, and studying their language and activities helps you respect them for what they are." (Senior Marlene Brown) from France, and singing Christmas carols during the holiday season.

Activities provided by the German Club also enabled students to gain knowledge of another way of life.

Members bought a Christmas tree and decorations and had a party during the holiday season at which they trimmed the tree and sang German carols. The tree was later given to a needy family. Ice skating and a German "Fasching" party, which is a masquerade ball, highlighted the group's activities later in the year.

The organization also participated in the All School Project, a German Field Day, and the Kansas Federation of Students of German Convention during the spring.

Hand signs foreign speech offer outlet to learning

Learning to communicate with hearing impaired students, Sign Language members were taught by Mr. Don Nichols. With 17 students enrolled at the beginning of the school year, the organization became a credit course for the first time

"We learn how to sign (talk with hands), interpret orally, and read signs. We also include a shallow education for impaired students." (Mr. Nichols) in its three years of existence. Students learned about causes of deafness, and how to interact with deaf people.

Local and national speakers demonstrated this adjustment required for normal life. Visitors included Gerald Jordon from Gallaudet College in Washington D.C., Madeleine Aaron of the Kansas School for Deaf Students, and two deaf students who attend Johnson County Community Junior College in Kansas City, Kansas.

The group was involved in a variety of activities including the Spanish Concurso.

"Spanish Club is fun and you can learn. We go to the Concurso every year and at Christmas we give food to a Spanish family. That is something really worthwhile." (Senior Elinor Edwards)

Held Oct. 26 in Wichita State University's Wilner Auditorium, the Concurso brought "ones" to club members Julie Beren, Cindy Bily and Elinor Edwards. Participants were judged on Spanish speaking and writing techniques. In the oral presentations, the students were rated on qualities of accent, pronunciation, and degree of fluency, with correct grammar and idiomatic use of Spanish being the qualifications for the written portion.

Selling candy to earn money for Press Club, seniors Diane Hougland and Chuck Caro, chairmen of numerous projects, convincingly approach customers.

By sponsoring activities such as the yard sale and the "Buy a Woman" auction, Press Club was able to help make up for the shortage of funds in the Journalism Department, caused by a city-wide budget cut.

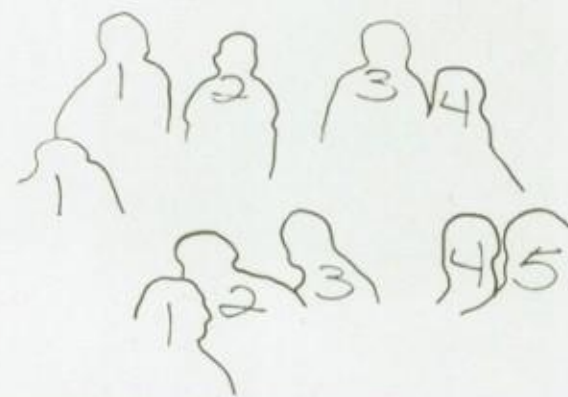

Financial difficulties also caused problems for the staff operating radio station KLOK. Radio Club members, sponsored by Mr. Arlen Roberson, had to cope with

"Working with KLOK definitely gives me experience that I'll need later, but there is a lot of responsibility involved too."
(Junior Joyce Hall)

power supply problems causing the station to shut down. However, a local station donated a new console, which made the headaches worth while.

Extra-curricular activities varied from selling girls to playing music, but in Photography Club it included taking, developing, and printing pictures.

Slide shows, demonstrations, and a presentation from Charles Rollins, Head Photographer of The Wichita Eagle, highlighted the club's year.

Future medics visit mortuary; students gain responsibility

With a membership composed of students planning to enter the medical field, the Future Medical Careers Club provided

"It's a pretty neat club. It's different from most clubs because we have speakers and things."
(Junior Kim Hayenga)

activities designed to aid its members in their quest.

Planned events included visiting a mortuary, scheduling guest speakers, and helping students research colleges and medical courses required for further education.

Home Economics Related Occupations (H.E.R.O.) was also involved with helping students prepare for their futures. During the year, twenty students were employed

"HERO interests me as a good course to take because when girls and guys get out of school they are uncertain of what the future will hold. HERO prepares you for the future. As far as my job, I've learned to deal with people and retail merchandising which will help anyone in any job."

(Senior Kim Ellis)

at local businesses and received credit based on their ability to perform the various functions necessary with employment.

The organization also sponsored an employee and parent coffee during which the students made presentations explaining their positions and responsibilities. An open house and an evening visiting the elderly also promoted club unity and aided in the student's education.

Gaining responsibility was also the basis for Office Education (O.E.), and Distributive Education (D.E.).

Through taking field trips to local businesses, students were able to learn the means and motives of the business world. Featured speakers throughout the year also presented the members with information on subjects such as salesmanship, advertising and shoplifting.

The quietness of a banking atmosphere gives senior Peggy Gillenwater, Office Education student, a break from the rush of school.

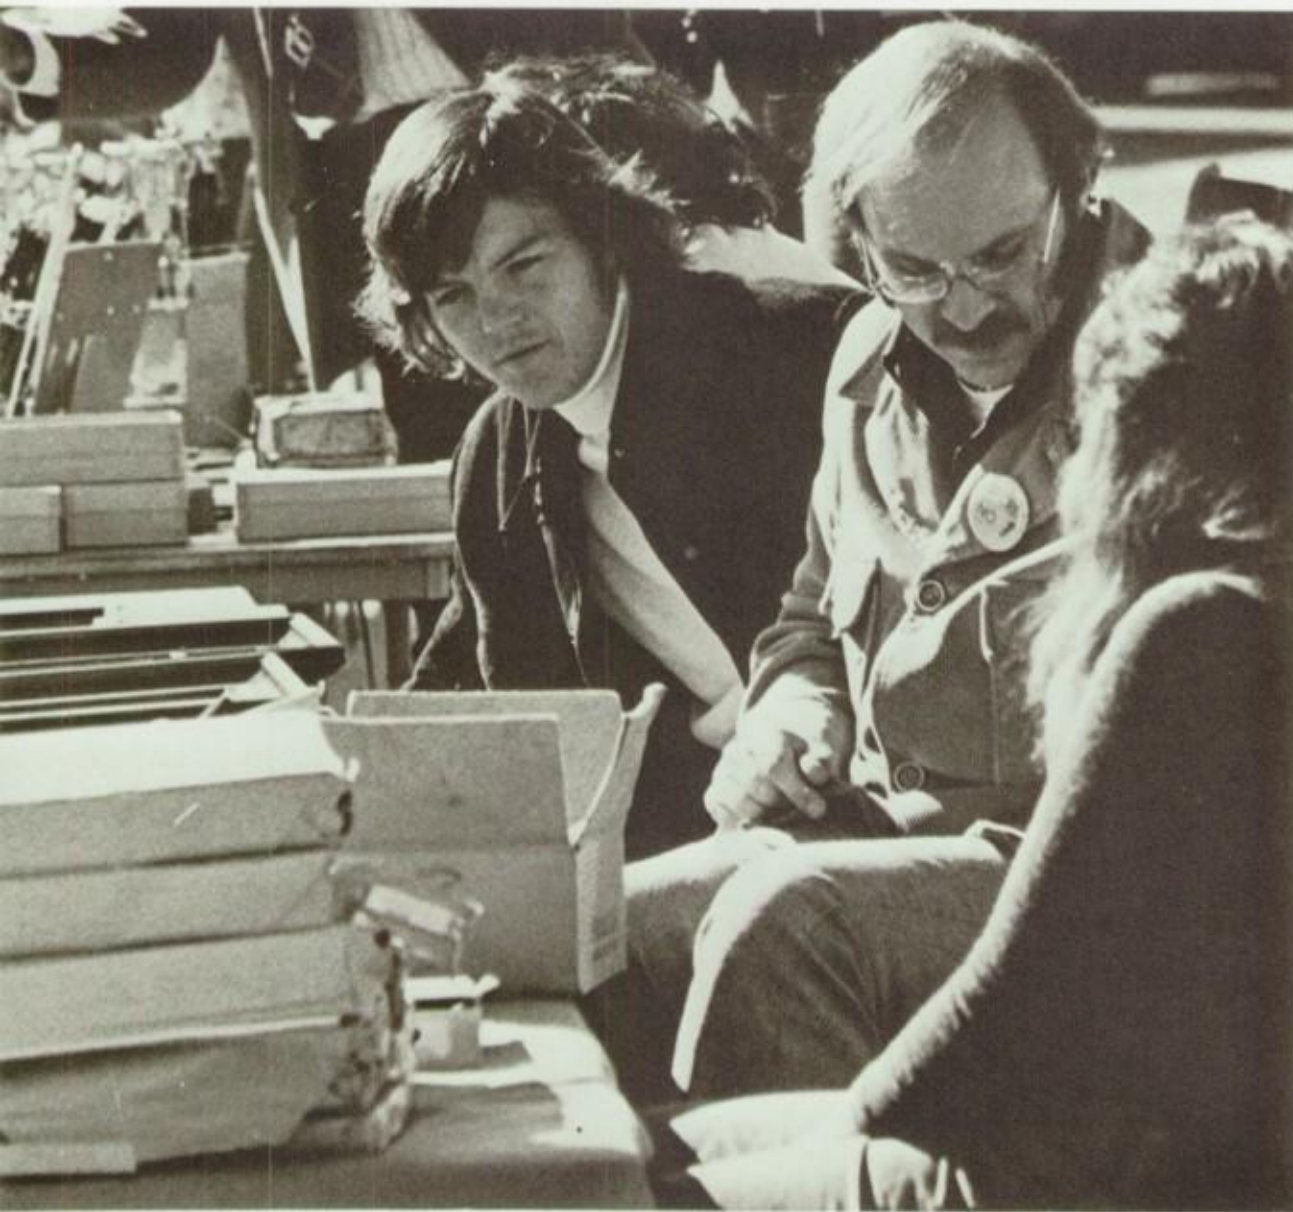

▲ Taking advantage of varied opportunities available through Office Education is senior Nancy Standley, working as a radiologist's assistant.

◀ Caring for puppies in a pet shop is one of the many aspects of Distributive Education as senior Cindy Heyland discovers.

Winning in still another type of competition, the 1975 National Merit Semi-Finalists were announced Sept. 19. With competitors rating among the highest scorers in the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, eight seniors were honored as compared to three in 1974.

On a school-wide level, the blood donor program flourished twice during the year. With over 1,500 students giving pints of blood, the program was open to students seventeen years and older, and sponsored by vice-principal Willie Johnson.

Spirit up, club emerges; Youth Council focuses aims

Aimed toward uniting student support in all sports, Spirit Unlimited became the first co-ed pep club at Southeast. With an informal atmosphere an important aspect of the 250-member group, no requirements were necessary to join and the only type of uniform worn was a hat and a bandana.

Sponsored by Mrs. Ann Dorrah, members were able to take part in spirit breakfasts, pep rallies, honk parades, and meetings throughout the year. One problem experienced was establishing a meeting time or scheduling an activity when the entire group could attend.

Hoping to solve such school oriented problems was the Youth Council, moderated by Dr. David McElhiney, director of secondary education. Consisting of five students selected from each Wichita high school, the Council acted as a sounding board for concerns of the students.

Work quality brings honors

Having demonstrated superior ability in the area of journalism, 13 students were initiated into the honorary society of Quill and Scroll Feb. 27 at Wichita High School Heights. Students from five city high schools participated.

STUDENT LIFE

Take time to laugh —

It is the music of the soul.

Support rates high with groups

After cutting through weeks of red tape in order to legally dismiss students from class, the Banner Girls were prepared to show their support for the football teams. Just before the lunch bell rang, the girls went into various classes, and kidnapped the varsity players, whom they then led, blindfolded, to a park for lunch.

The organization also sponsored candy and cookie sales, a garage sale, and the "Powder-Puff" basketball game.

Encouraging school spirit was a function of the cheerleaders as well. Besides leading the fans during games, they also made posters and banners for the halls, made cookies and candy for the players, and toilet-papered the houses of both athletes and coaches.

Inner joy is mirrored as Caren Urick, senior Banner Girl, forsee's the groups' next venture.

With last minute instructions, the royalty crowning party prepares to set off down the red carpet. The group includes Judy Williams, senior, 1973 Homecoming Queen Anne Hirleman, Sharon Brown, senior, Bobby Palmer, flower bearer, and Dawn Washington, crown bearer.

Attendants to the queen were Dayna Eubanks, first runner-up, Melanie Smith, second runner-up, Pam Olander, third runner-up, all seniors. The royalty nominees and winners were selected and voted on by the football team.

Although scheduled as part of the festivities, float competition was cancelled due to student vandalism of the floats and the places where they were built. With cartons of eggs acting as their weapons, over 20 students were arrested and booked for intended vandalism.

One tradition that returned after a four-year lapse was the Homecoming Dance, which was held at the Campus Activity Center Oct. 26. Dancing to the music of "Image," over 130 couples attended the event, co-sponsored by Student Council and Banner Girls.

During the band's break, the 1974 Homecoming king was announced. Selected by the cheerleaders, Banner Girls, and Pompon Girls, senior David Boyles took his place as King. Other nominees were seniors Fred Crabtree, Bryan Hanning, Doug Hart, Jim Maloney, Jeff McMillen, and Jay Rodney.

Breaking through the "Good Luck" banner, senior Jim Maloney yells with anticipation for the Southeast game.

She reigns in 1974

Nervous with anticipation for the announcement, first runner-up Dayna Eubanks and escort Charles Bunton, seniors, make the traditional walk to the center of the field.

Stunned by hearing her name over the loudspeaker as the 1974 Southeast Homecoming Queen, senior Sharon Maurer trembles with excitement alongside her escort, senior Mike McBride.

1974 Homecoming Queen candidates are Jan Ritchie, Suzanne Schmidt, Pam Olander, Dayna Eubanks, Julie Johnson, Amy Snider, Melanie Smith, and Queen Sharon Maurer, all seniors.

Onstage, backstage crews build 'Mockingbird'

Adapted from Harper Lee's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel, the play "To Kill A Mockingbird" was presented by the advanced drama students Nov. 21 and 23, in the Southeast auditorium.

Under the direction of Miss Ruth McCormick, "Mockingbird" described the lives of two children growing up in the deep South. Portrayed by seniors Vance Brungardt and Carol Smith, Jem and Scout were deeply influenced by the

All with different ideas toward the accused, a large part of the cast attends the trial. They are Ginger Thrasher, Charles Bradberry, Mark Mason, Mike Gutierrez, Kenny Florence, David Yungclas, Dennis Dobbin, Amy Snider, and Margaret Moseley, all seniors.

"I was scared because I felt like I was competing with the girl in the movie, and it's my favorite movie. But Miss McCormick told me that I had to distinguish a totally different character from the movie. And afterwards, I had the satisfaction of knowing I did it--at least I hope so." (Senior Carol Smith, Scout in "Mockingbird") prejudiced happenings in the '30s, the period during which the play is set. But the two children had the firm guidance of their father Atticus Finch, played by senior Mike Gutierrez.

Appointed to defend Tom Robinson, senior Kenny Florence, a black man accused of attacking a white girl, Atticus found defeat from the townspeople in a verdict of guilt and Tom's ultimate death.

Set in a flashback format, the audience was guided through the childhood experiences by the now grown-up Scout, portrayed by senior Susan Justice.

Seniors Mark Mason, Mr. Gilmer, Mike Gutierrez, Atticus, and Charlie Bradberry, Bob Ewell, re-enact Harper Lee's powerful testimony of Bob Ewell.

Hit with brainstorm as to how to explain the actions of her father, Atticus, senior Carol Smith, Scout, tries to put two and two together.

Contemplating comments said by gossipy neighbors, senior Vance Brungardt, Jem, and junior Fred Campos, Dill, show dissatisfaction with their statements.

Reminiscing over her youth, senior Susan Justice, portraying by narration the elder Scout, gives a detailed account of the turning point in her life.

Senior Dayna Eubanks, Calpurnia, voices her anger about letting children attend the court proceedings.

Winter sports nominate royal court

Taking their place as the 1974-75 royalty, seniors Jerry Short and Caren Urick were crowned Sweetheart king and queen Feb. 28 in a packed Southeast Gymnasium. Chosen by participants in winter sports and spirit groups, attendants to the winners were Tami Quick and Mike McBride, first runners-up; and April Kennedy and Lee McCroskey, second runners-up. All are seniors.

With the crowning ceremony only a part of the week's festivities, other activities included a Spirit Week competition. Determined to see which class had the most spirit, sophomore, junior, and senior classes decorated the halls and wore the colors of red, green and blue, respectively.

Closing out the week was the Sweetheart dance March 1 at the Broadview Hotel. Dancing to the music of "Wild and Free," over 100 couples from Southeast attended.

Tami Quick, senior, escorted by Paul Carroll, senior, smiles at the honor of being first runner-up for Sweetheart Queen.

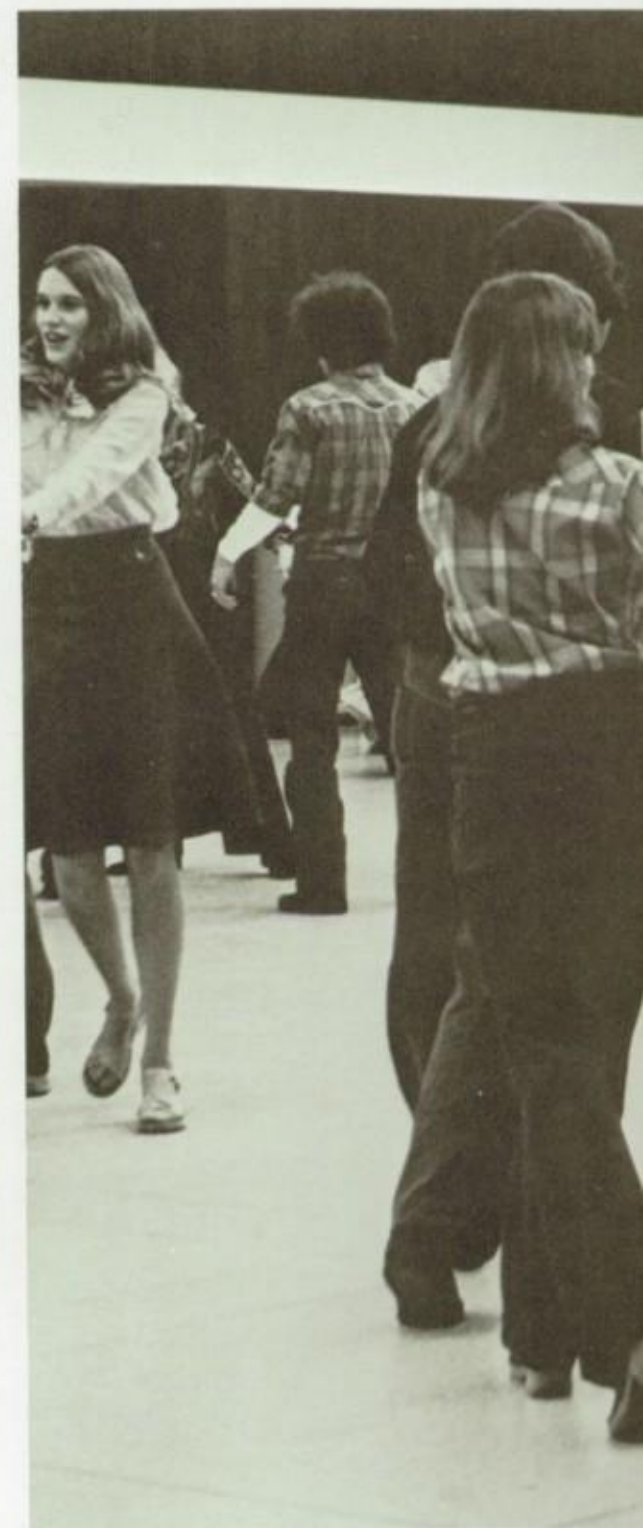

Senior journalist Jane Schlintz watches closely as the senior jar mounts up with money, which will be used to support the Hoofbeats.

During the Jan. 10 halftime crowning activities, senior Doug Hart clutches his imaginary impregnated stomach as he hears his name announced as the 1975 Ugly Man.

Attempting to rouse the crowds' excitement, Ugly Man contestants junior Mike Bradley and sophomore Maurice Moore show their audience what it takes to make them ugly.

Ugliness prevails, square dance closes week

... when the morning totals were announced on the last day of competition, very few souls expected either the juniors or seniors to be able to surpass the lead already established by the sophs . . .

This was the setting for the biggest upset in Ugly-Man history. The inter-class competition involved the attempt to fill large jars with coins, the idea being to build the highest monetary value. One flaw, however—pennies counted as pennies. But nickels and dimes didn't add five or ten cents, they subtracted it.

As the final day drew near, the sophomore total seemed to become a more and more impossible target for the trailing classes, and on Friday morning, with the sophs an easy 502 cents ahead, defeat seemed impossible.

"Granted, I was a bit embarrassed, but I was glad everyone took it in fun." (Senior Doug Hart, UglyMan)

Yet, through the day the tide slowly turned, and at noon, when the competition ceased, no one was sure of the outcome. The suspense was ended at halftime of the Jan. 10 basketball game between Southeast and South when it was revealed that the seniors with a miraculous triumph had not only won, but had put enough silver in the jars of the opposing classes to kill the early lead gained by the sophomores.

Demolishing things was not restricted only to Ugly Man competition. The OSOM (Open Season on Males Week) closed with demolishing the tradition of boy asking girl, and a Saturday night square dance enabled the females to "take charge," ask their dates for the evening's activities and learn what it is like to be a man.

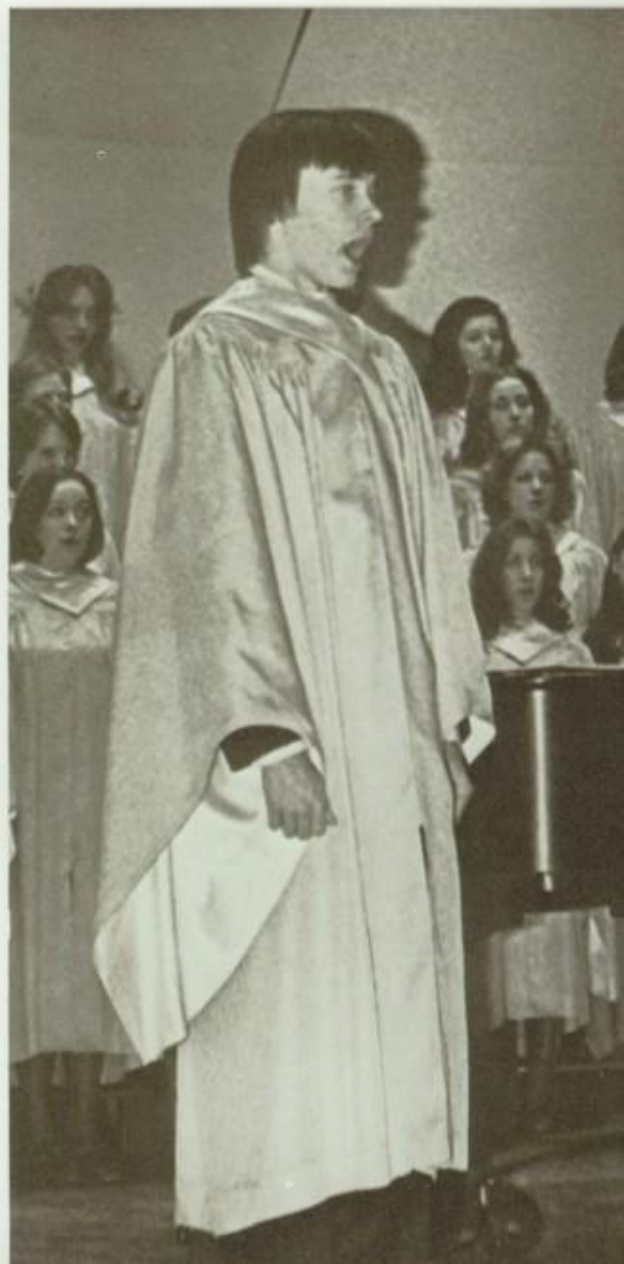

Dwarfed by the size of the tuba, Doug Wolfe, sophomore, joins in a band rehearsal for upcoming performances.

Using their talents, Bret Whitehead, junior, and Walter Stewart, sophomore, combine the sounds of various types of drums.

With hard concentration on the notes, Patty Fahrbach, senior, and Keith Plenert, junior, wait for their entrance.

While entertaining the audience with his tenor solo, Vearl Durrington, senior, belts out "Tol' My Cap'n."

Amidst boughs of greenery, the Junior Misses sing for parents and invited guests at the Christmas formal at Wichita State University.

Melodious notes sound, entertainment rates high

With programs both in and out of school, music groups occupied themselves with a variety of performances throughout the year.

In the instrumental field, the symphonic and stage bands gave their first performances at the annual Christmas concert held Dec. 19 at the Southeast auditorium. Besides traditional holiday numbers, the Stage Band presented a special arrangement entitled "Tribute to the Duke," in posthumous honor of jazz great Duke Ellington.

Outside of the school, the instrumental groups participated in the Wichita State University All Day Concert Band Invitational held March 1 at the Duerksen Fine Arts Center.

After a 30-minute program, the bands attended a clinic session designed to prepare them for city and state contests.

Also spending many hours in concert preparation was the Vocal Music Department. With music ranging from sacred to pop to avant-garde, all singing groups were involved in the four annual presentations.

Chosen over choruses across the state, Choraleers also performed at the annual Kansas Music Educators Association Convention, Feb. 8, at Century II and the Metropolitan Baptist Church.

Waiting for their cue, members of Choraleers perform for the Wilbur Junior High audience.

Casual, formal; fashions allow creativity

Casual, comfortable, stylish; to school, to work, to sports activities. Clothes had to fit the occasion. These vicious routes which many Southeast students followed demanded a wardrobe that could handle a student's busy days.

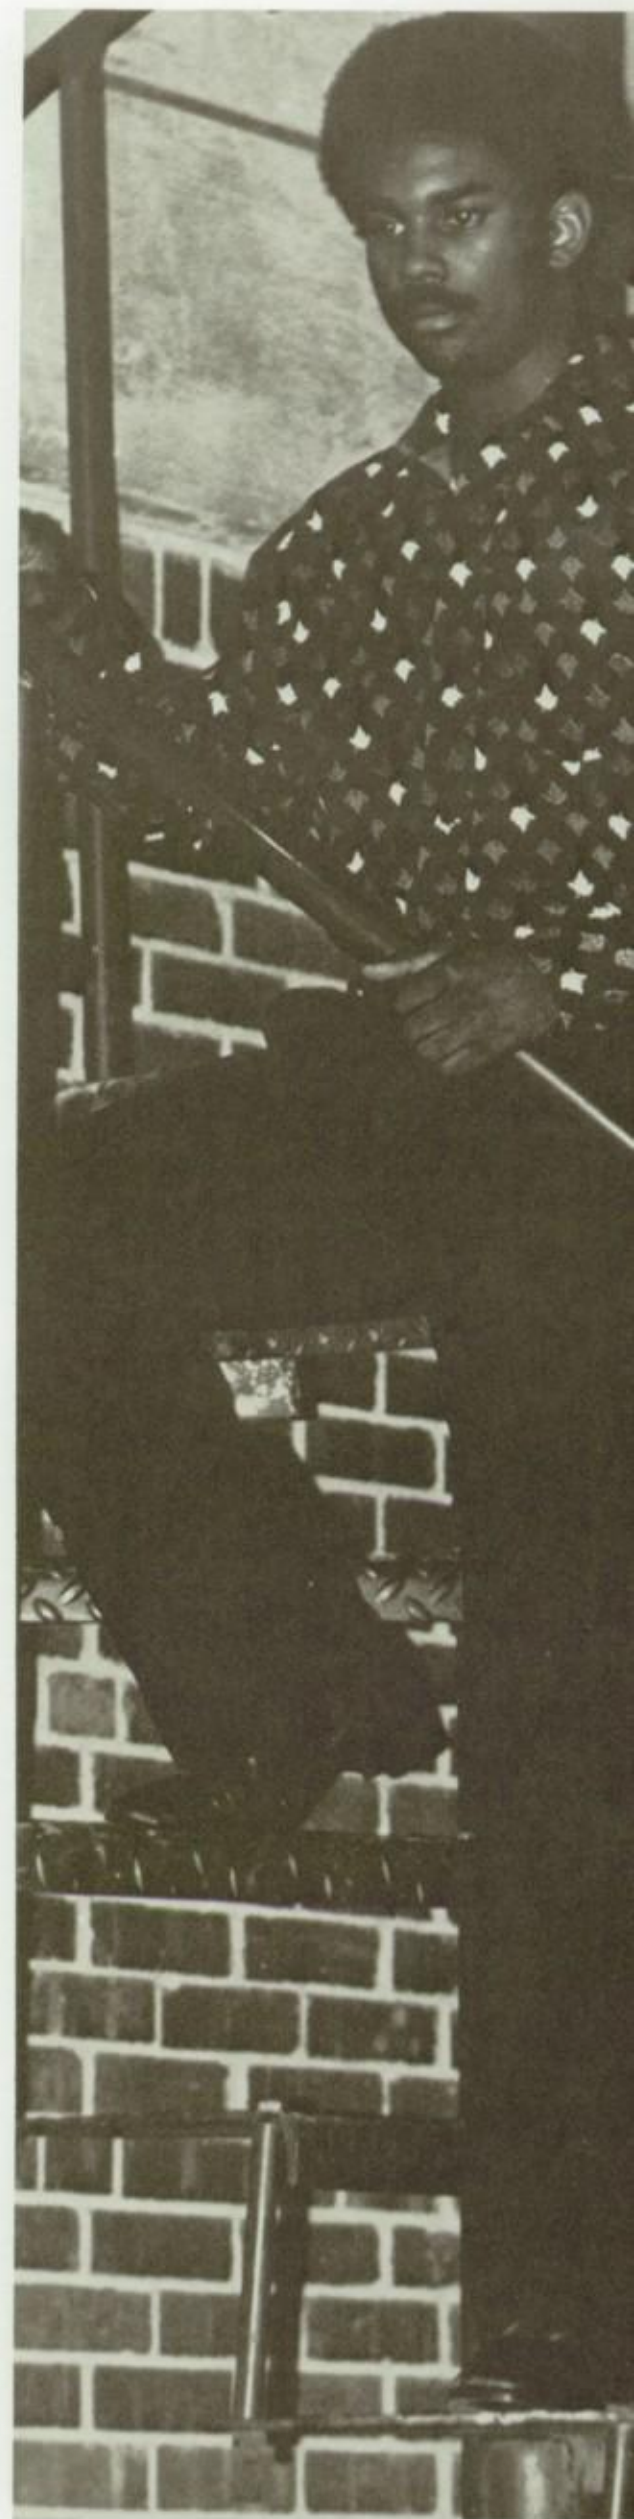

Fashions for women reverted from the extraordinarily casual patched, well-worn jeans to pants of various materials and patterns. Varieties of sweaters were still seen, topping pants, as well as skirts.

On the separate scene, skirts were lengthened to an average knee length. Shoes continued with the style called "wedgies," the higher the better.

For men, the fashion was the pulled together look—ranging from printed shirts and "baggie" jeans to bulky knit sweaters and plaid pants. The ski trend was also popular.

Nostalgia set the mood for the entire year. Pants, shirts, sweaters, skirts, and shoes, all seemed to bring the past into the present.

Mike Bulleigh, sophomore, feels comfortable in the semi-formal fashions consisting of the stylish blazer and baggies.

While sporting the popular ski look, Clark Coyer, junior, contemplates upcoming ski trips with new equipment.

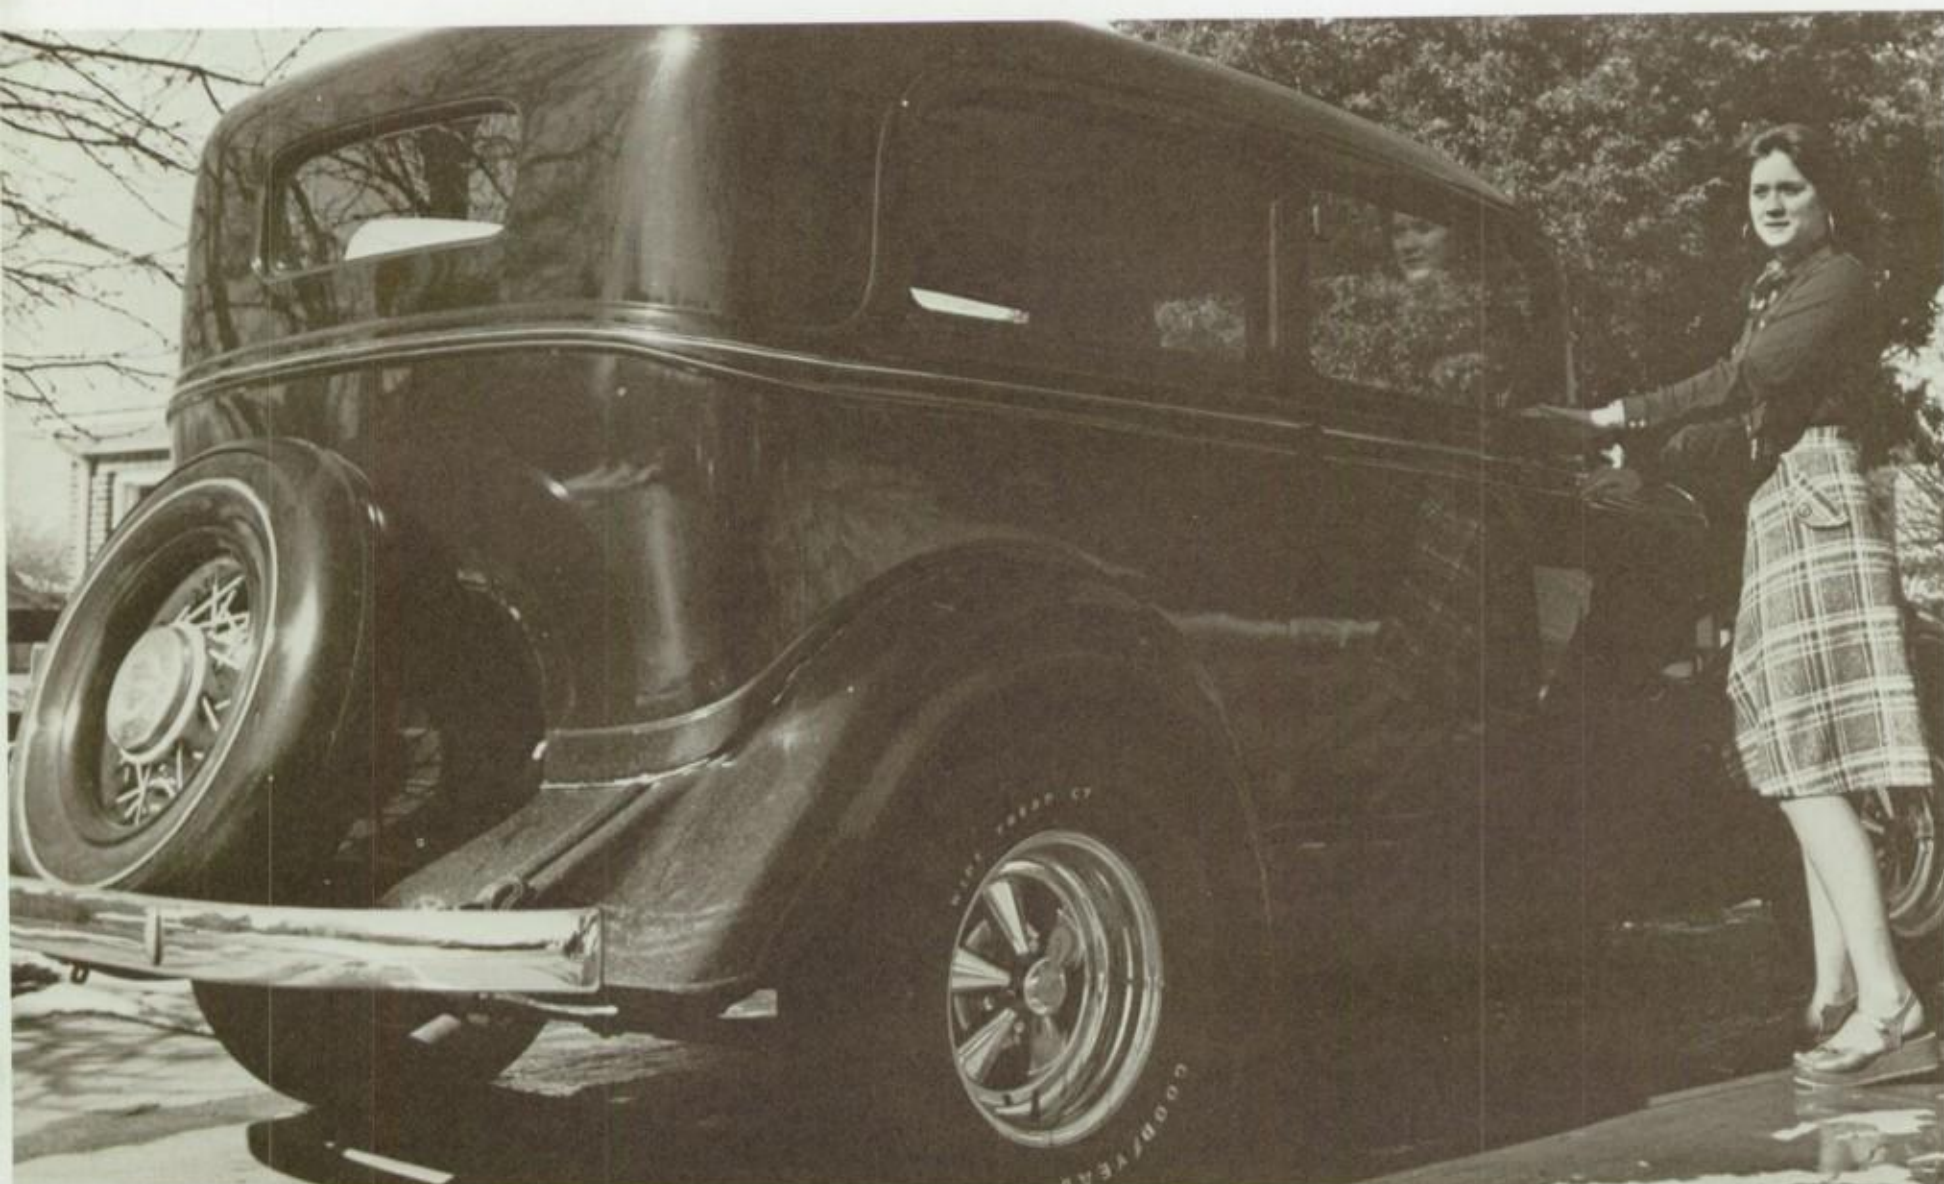

Wearing the casual-formal combination for men, Nathan Becoat, junior, reflects upon the freer atmosphere of fashions.

While she relaxes, Shala Blackburn, senior, proves that even with new, more formal styles, jeans still remain popular.

By combining all facets of the nostalgic wardrobe, Julie Watkins, senior, ties everything together with a 1933 Plymouth.

How often do 13 people simultaneously quit their forty-hour week jobs? These people, however, won't miss the salary because there never was any.

Hoofbeats staff 1974-75 now resigns as the final pages of this yearbook leave Southeast. Hopefully we chose the more memorable events that occurred throughout the year. Ideas, plans, and pictures were constantly changed in order to produce a book worthy of the school we saw. This book was constructed to appeal to the reader now as well as 10 years from now. Learning, activities and organizations are reviewed and essays provide an account of the regional and national issues. Now, our plans and work are completed. American Yearbook Company—it's in your hands.

If it weren't for certain people with the Company, we would be hesitant. Steve Maxwell, John McNown and Frank Wright couldn't have done any more for us than what they did. Hours of meetings, artwork, corrections made after pages were sent, and stretching deadlines were just a few of the ways these three men showed their interest in our yearbook. To them—a big THANKS!

Also outside school realm, assistance came from Murl Jones, Student Photos manager. From loaning cameras and supplies to giving advice at various times throughout the year, this man was not alone in rendering services.

Randall's Formal Wear was most cooperative in allowing our photographers to use their tuxedos. Even though the guys couldn't afford the pants with their outfits, the elegance of Randall's still stood out.

Having a new principal really helped the Hoofbeats staff obtain the goals we had set for ourselves. Dr. Vernon Kirby gave constant guidance when some decisions had to be made and we lacked the insight of how to handle them.

As we recall the concern the faculty and office workers illustrated as we met our deadlines, our staff particularly thanks Marvin Huffman for assisting in photography when our equipment couldn't meet the demand. Michael Hockett also helped, but his speciality was guiding the staff in our struggle to earn money.

Funding the yearbook affected others as well. Various stage band members drew attention to our auctions. Because of the band's jazz, crowds assembled and excitement for the projects mounted.

Whether we stayed late for financial reasons or to meet our deadlines, our greatest friend was Rosie, who swept around us and always told us to never worry about being in her way. Thanks to this one custodian our room was always clean in spite of all our scraps, cups, and wrappers.

While all these people eased deadline tensions, two photographers deserve recognition in still another way. Senior Pete Beren and sophomore Mike Fizer lent their expert hands and equipment to provide pictures for our yearbook cover. Back cover shots are attributed to Pete while Mike ran from the buffalo in his attempt to take the picture for the front cover. Additional photography skills came from juniors David Wise and Jim Bloom, who spent time outside several school days to print and take pictures.

Taking time as year ends, staff gives many thanks

Although we thank all newspaper staff members for their patience and understanding, special recognition must be made of seniors Brad Beuke, Dee Mills and Monty Rockey. It was these writers who stripped heads and pasted up copy.

If it were not for one exceptionally dedicated person, all these thank you's would not be necessary. Mrs. Paula Simons has devoted more hours to this book than anyone. On the nights when the staffers stayed until 10:00 working on a deadline and then went to bed by 1 a.m. after doing homework, Mrs. Simons would still be up at 4 a.m. proof-reading the pages for the last time. She is an irreplaceable adviser and was the Hoofbeats greatest asset. There's no other way to thank this kind of person than by our theme—Mrs. Simons, the Hoofbeats staff for the final time says THANK YOU for TAKING TIME.
